VOLUME XIV. THURSDAY MORNING, JUNE 14, 1883. PRICE 5 CENT

A DRUNKEN JUROR.

SCENE IN THE STAR ROUTE PROCEEDINGS.

One of the Peers Falls Down With Delirium Tremens—Sensation in the Courtroom—The Whisky Bottle Prescribed—Getting Instructions From the Court in the Matter.

WASHINGTON, June 13.—In obedience to the direction of Judge Wylie, the star route jury came into court to receive instructions on points of law. Before reaching their seats, Juror Vernon, who had been sick during the night fell on the floor in a fit, creating great excitement. He was placed under care of a physician, and the other jurors were sent to their rooms.

THE JUROR ONLY DRUNK.

In about fifteen minutes, Deputy Marshal Fasset reported Vernon sitting up, and would soon be all right. Judge Wylie said: "I have a good deal of doubt in my mind in regard to the consequences of this occurrence. This man has been drinking a good deal. He is a hard drinker. During the progress of the trial, on one occasion, I had to take him aside and give him a pretty sharp admonition, and he promised to abstain, but I have observed that he has resumed his hard drinking, and I suppose that confinement in the jury room and the cutting off of supplies of that kind resulted in this attack. I don't know what it is, delirium tremens or mania potu, but he is not fit to be on the jury now. I suppose that the doctor will give him a prescription and it will probably be brandy or whisky."

HE GETS HIS DRAM.

Crier—He has given it to him.

Mr. Merrick—I suppose whatever the doctor prescribes for the juror can be taken by him.

The court—undoubtedly, but facts of this kind are apt to leave the mind in so shattered a condition as to create difficulty.

Deputy Marshal—He is all right now.

Judge Wylie—Then the jury can come back.

THE JURY PRESENT AGAIN.

At 11:05 the jury came in. Foreman Crane said: "Your honor, one of the jury desires to ask a question of the court. To most of us it seems to be a question of fact, but we prefer to let Mr. Horrigan speak for himself."

Judge Wylie—The court will hear his question, and if it be a question of fact, will not undertake to pass upon it.

Juror Horrigan then rose, and in a confused manner put a question to the court of almost unintelligible character, which seemed to relate to the dates of certain orders made by Brady, and to the nature of the "stumbling block," which Brady said he found in his way.

Judge Wylie—Those are questions of fact and not of law, and it is not for the court to instruct you in that connection. Now, gentlemen, you have had a sick member of the jury with you, and a disagreeable accident happened this morning. He seems to be in a measure restored, and I hope he will be able now to perform his duties. I don't propose to discharge this jury very early. This is the second time this case has been tried. I don't wish to put any undue stress upon your minds, but the court thinks you ought to agree on a verdict of some kind. You can retire again.

MORE INFORMATION WANTED.

Foreman—Your honor, we have not agreed upon the question of conspiracy. In case we should agree upon the guilt of any one of the parties, I wish to know if we can report to the court.

Judge Wylie—No. You must report a verdict as a whole.

Foreman—Some of the jury think——

The Court—You have no right to say what they think.

Foreman—My mind is in some doubt on the question on conspiracy.

The Court—Crime is a conspiracy, followed by an overt act.

THE QUESTION OF CONSPIRACY.

Foreman—Suppose we don't agree as to the conspiracy, can we vote upon the parties?

Judge Wylie—The court will not interfere with the order of your proceeding. It will not attempt to direct you in your discussions.

Mr. Davidge—I understand that this is a charge of conspiracy.

Mr. Merrick—And I understand that the jury have the right to vote as they please.

Judge Wylie—According to my instructions you can decide upon any point in this indictment, in any order or time. The verdict, when reported, must be a complete verdict, not based upon part of the indictment, but upon the whole. There has been a great deal of surplus-age, as you have been told. There are substantially but two questions in the indictment. First, as to the conspiracy. On that you have the right to say whether the defendants, or any of them, were concerned with Kerdell in that conspiracy."

"Or whether there was a conspiracy," interrupted Mr. Ingersoll.

The Court—If you decide that there was a conspiracy with him, you must say who was engaged in it, but that is not all. You must find at least one overt act following. If you find a conspiracy and one overt act, it is your duty to render a verdict as to the parties so found, and that covers the whole ground. You cannot say that you found a conspiracy and no overt act, or an overt act and no conspiracy. The verdict of guilty must be a general verdict in that way. A verdict of not guilty of course, covers the whole ground, and that is the rule as to the whole or any number of the defendants.

AS TO CREATURE COMFORTS.

The foreman complained of the high temperature of the jury room, and asked to be permitted to walk in the city hall park, to which request the court acceded, saying that he would treat the jury well at present, but intimating that a resort might be had to the common law rule, deprivation of light and food if a verdict were not soon forthcoming. The deputy marshal was instructed to allow Juror Vernon two drinks per day, but to prevent the circulation of the whisky bottle among the jurors, and the court took a recess until 10 a. m. to-morrow, with the understanding that it would meet to receive the verdict of the jury should they agree on one before that hour.

THE EFFECT OF VERNON'S DRUNKENNESS.

There has been some speculation here to-day as to whether the mental condition of Juror Vernon will afford ground for successfully contesting the validity of any verdict which the jury may render. The counsel for the government do not think it will. They hold the rule governing the cases of misconduct on the part of jurors to be, that unless the misconduct is of such a character as to be prejudicial to the defendant or complaining party, it cannot be held to be sufficient cause for a setting aside of the verdict, and that the drinking of intoxicating liquors by a juror, when it is not improperly obtained, and is not taken to excess, is also insufficient to violate a verdict. Mr. Merrick leading counsel for the government, said to the associated press reporter to-night: "The illness of juror Vernon will not effect whatever verdict the jury may render." Mr. Ingersoll, of counsel for the defense, said Vernon's illness would not affect the legality of the verdict should there be one. He said he thought the juror's illness was of an epileptic character, and was not caused by excessive indulgence in strong drink.

EDUCATION AT ROANOKE.

The Close of the Thirtieth Session—The Programme of the Day.

SALEM, Va., June 13.—The thirtieth session of Roanoke college has just closed. Except for interruption in January, on account of smallpox, the session has been prosperous. the attendance shows a gain of ten per cent. Considerable additions have been made to the literary and scientific collection. The financial condition of the college is better than ever before. The exercises took place to-day according to the following programme: George W. McClintock, West Virginia, Latin salutatory; F. C. Helbeg, Virginia, Greek oration; W. R. Brown, Virginia, Congress of Nations; Grady Robinson, Virginia, Iron; W. R. L. Cormany, Virginia, popular education; J. W. Smith, Virginia, Growth of Human ideas; F. M. Renick, West Virginia, Summum Bonum; J. R. Everson, Virginia, Public Freedom; F. M. Nichols Virginia, Mind must think; B. W. Cronk, Virginia, The Code of Honor; D. A. L. Worrel, Virginia, Excelsior; Charles B King, Virginia, The New Era; W. H. McKinney, Indian Territory, Choctaw Oration; Adolph F. Synder, Virginia, German Oration; Perry R. Nugent, Louisiana, Valedictory; Mr. McKinney's subject was "The Wrongs of the American Indian." He spoke with modest dignity and made a fine impression. He has a good command of the English language, though he speaks with a perceptible accent. The degree of "A. B." was conferred upon the graduating class, with the exception of two who received the degree of "B. S." The degree of A. M. was conferred on the following among others: The class of 1877—John D. Fray, Madison Court House, Virginia. The class of 1878—J. A. Brown, Blountville, Tenn.; John E. Bushnell, Prosperity, South Carolina; W. C. Decher, Columbia, South Carolina; John P. Haislip, Roanoke College; J. S. Moser, Mount Jackson, Virginia; A. D. Sayre, Montgomery, Alabama; J. B. Stephenson, Harrisonburg, Virginia; J. W. Strickeler, Gladesboro, Virginia; William Wienderlich, New Orleans; Edward J. Young, New Orleans, Louisiana. No honorary degrees were conferred this year. The junior English prize scholarship given by Dr. J. D. Keedy, of Maryland, was presented to Mr. Wythe Frank Morehead, of Virginia, by Mr. Charles Dudley Warner, of Connecticut. The faculty medal in Greek to Newton Altred Yonce, of Virginia. The faculty in mathematics to Perry Remsen Nugent, of Louisiana. The medal in oratory to James Gallagher MacCure, of Virginia. For the benefit of the student of the college and also the teachers who wish to pursue collegiate studies, the trustees and faculty have decided to offer advantages of a spring course of lectures, to be taken in connection with the regular college work. Hon. William H. Ruffner L. L. D of Virginia; Hon. J. P. Wickersham, of Pennsylvania, and Professor E. V. Degraff, of New Jersey, have been elected as special lecturers. Severrl members of the faculty will give lectureres. In his closing remarks, President Dahr, stated that Roanoke college had now completed its third decade without endowment or state aid, and it had a national reputation. Within the last decade it had received students from more than twenty states and territories. It had been built up by the self sacrificing devotion of its faculty, especially by its first president, D. F. Beetle, who for twenty-three years never stopped for a weeks rest. The president emphasized the need of an endowment, but remarked that the spirit of self sacrificing devotion exhibited in the past history of the college was a richer gift than the magnificent buildings. The future outlook of the college is hopeful. Exercises were concluded by benediction.

LIEUTENANT GARLINGTON.

Preparing to Start Off Into Arctic Solitude to Relieve Greeley's Party.

WASHINGTON, June 13.—Lieutenant Garlington left here to-night, and will sail from New York Wednesday on the Yantic, on his relief expedition to Lady Franklin bay, to relieve Lieutenant Greeley's party. He has very little expectation of reaching Lady Franklin bay this summer, but will go as far as he can, put up his winter quarters, and send out sledge parties to meet Lieutenant Greeley, who in September will leave his station and follow down the east shore of Grinnell land until he falls in with the relief party. In the summer of 1884 it is fair to expect that both parties will get back.

Lieutenant Garlington is a young cavalry officer, seven years out of West Point; one of those who received sudden promotion in consequence of the Custer massacre. He is now well up to captaincy. In person he is short and slight, almost to effeminacy. His whole appearance would not encourage the idea that he had the physical endurance necessary to lead such a party. His fellow officers, however, have great confidence in his success. He volunteered for the service, and in conversation this evening expressed himself as confident that no accident would befall his party, which is equipped with everything which experience recommends, and is acting with an understanding with the Greeley party. At St. John's he and his men will be transferred from the Yantic to the Proteus, which carried Greeley north in 1881, since when nothing has been heard from him.

THE OHIO GREENBACKERS.

Both Great Parties Charged With Corruption, and Greenbackism Pure.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, June 13.—The state convention of the greenback labor party met here to-day. About forty delegates were in attendance. The platform charges both great parties with bribery and corruption in securing nominations and elections, with fostering monopolies and with extravagant use of the taxing powers. It demands the abolition of the national bank system, and the substitution of the legal tender paper money for the present currency. It insists that the railroads be required to reduce their extortionate rates; favors the postal telegraph system; demands the restoration to the people of the public lands recklessly appropriated to corporations; declares that all men have a right to a part of the land, and that general prices depend upon the amount of currency in circulation, and calls for temperance reformation and the abolition of the convict system. The following ticket was nominated governor, Charles Jenkins; lieutenant governor, William Baker; supreme judge, short term, H. A. Chamberlain; supreme court, long term, James B. Grogan; clerk supreme court, William Bentz; attorney-general, Lloyd G. Tuttle; auditor state, Colonel J. H. Roades; treasurer state, John Seitz; commissioner of public schools, J. M. Case; member of the board of public works, John J. Scribner.

MATTERS IN COURT.

A Big Will Case Decided—The Tennessee Gambling Case.

HARRISONBURG, Va., June 13.—Judge Newman, of the circuit court, this morning delivered an opinion in the celebrated Hall will case, involving the title to about $100,000 worth of property in the corporate limits of Harrisonburg. The decision gives Hall's heirs only about $8,000, or one-sixteenth interest in the disputed property without improvements. An appeal will be taken to the state court of appeals.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., June 13.—The argument of counsel testing the constitutionality of the gambling act, passed by the legislature, making gambling a felony, closed yesterday before the supreme court at Jackson, Tenn. The court this morning announced that the case would be continued for further argument until the next term, which begins in April.

NUTT AVENGED.

DUKES SHOT DEAD BY THE SON OF HIS VICTIM.

The Seducer and Murderer Receives Five Bullets From the Pistol of James Nutt—How the Villian Was Followed Up—Five Bullets Driven—The Avenger Surrenders Himself.

PITTSBURG, Pa., June 13.—The Post's Uniontown special says: James Nutt, son of the late state treasurer, Captain A. C. Nutt, deceased, shot and killed N. L. Dukes, his father's murderer, this evening. He shot five times, all the balls taking effect. Dukes died instantly. Dukes had been frequently warned of his danger in remaining in Uniontown, and he lately said he would either stay there or in the cemetery. It is said that he had experienced a fear of the son of Captain Nutt, and was never on the street after night. To-day James Nutt was seen practicing with a revolver at his home, and this evening about half-past seven he was standing near the post-office when Dukes came along. As Dukes was passing he turned his head, and noticed young Nutt just as he stepped from the doorway and fired, the shot taking effect in Dukes's side.

POURING IN HOT SHOT.

Dukes started to run, when Nutt followed and shot again. By this time Dukes was on the postoffice steps, when he received another shot and fell inside the door. Nutt followed and fired two more shots into Duke's prostrate body, one taking effect in the neck. Dukes was dead before any one could get to him. The revolver that did the work is the same that Captain Nutt carried on the morning of his death.

THE AVENGER IN JAIL.

Young Nutt gave himself up and is now in jail. He was calm but pale as a sheet. The coroner's jury is now sitting. The excitement is running high. Dukes, it will be remembered, was a frequent visitor at the house of Captain Nutt, where he was received as a friend and treated with the utmost hospitality. For some reason unexplained, he wrote letters to the captain, disgracing his daughter, and when the latter went to Dukes's room at the hotel to demand retraction, Dukes shot him down.

THE DYNAMITE TRIAL.

The Case for the Prosecution Closed—Argument in Progress.

LONDON, June 13.—The trial of the men concerned in the dynamite conspiracy, charged with treason felony, was resumed this morning. The detectives who effected the arrest of Ansburg testified that the prisoner, on being apprehended, was asked to give an account of himself, and was told if he refused he would have himself to blame for anything which happened to him. He thereupon said he came from America. Lord Chief Justice Coleridge expressed the opinion that as the prisoner was not provided with counsel, no statement of his which had been elicited by threat or promise could be received against him. Evidence was given by the witnesses to show the connection between Ansburg and Dr. Gallagher. It was proved that the latter introduced the former at the Charing Cross hotel as Mr. Gallagher in order that he might obtain letters and telegrams addressed to that name. Ansburg in examining Inspector Mellville, of the metropolitan police, who was called as a witness in regard to the words which passed between them when the former was arrested, called the inspector a liar because he denied he had said to him (Ansburg) at that time "You had better turn informer and get five hundred pounds." Lord Chief Justice Coleridge then interposed and restored order. A police inspector of Glasgow testified that he had visited Bernard Gallagher, while he was in prison. There Gallagher stated that he knew the other prisoners, but said that he was not connected with the dynamite schools in New York. He said he knew O'Donovan Rossa presided over one of the schools. An Irish constable swore that the prisoner, Curtin, lived at Fermog, Ireland, under the name of Kent, after he left America, and that he was connected with the Gallaghers. Mr. Majendie, government inspector, testified that he examined the contents of Whitehead's factory, in Ledsam street, Birmingham, which comprized two hundred pounds of nitro glycerine, six hundred pounds of nitric acid and seven hundred pounds of sulphuric acid. He also stated that he had examined the partition of local government board offices, which was wrecked by an explosive, and gave it as his opinion that twenty pounds of nitro glycerine had caused the damage. The case for the prosecution was then declared closed, and Mr. Clark began his argument on behalf of Dr. Gallagher. He declared that there was no occasion to defend the prisoner against the charge of levying war against the government, as no evidence had been adduced to show that he was guilty of that offense. Lord Chief Justice Coleridge declared that if the prisoners had agreed to destroy the property of the crown, to endanger life, or to intimidate the counsellors of the queen or parliament, they virtually levied war against the country. Counsel for the defense submitted that there was no case against Bernard Gallager, who, he said, had acted while under the influence of drink. The court adjourned.

THE QUEEN'S HEALTH.

The King of Annam—The Forces of Stanley and De Brazza.

LONDON, June 13.—This afternoon the Truth states that the queen has quite recovered from the injury to her knee, sustained some time ago by falling down the steps at Windsor palace. The depression of her majesty's spirits is, however, said by the Truth to cause some anxiety owing to its influence on her general health. It is the intention of the queen to leave for Scotland on the 20th inst, and arrangements for her departure are now being made.

PARIS, June 13.—It is reported from the Congo river that Henry M. Stanley has arrived at Brazzaville with one thousand men. M. DeBrazza has a force of two hundred men.

VIENNA, June 13.—A land-slip has occurred in Kuczurmarc, in the duchy of Bukowina, by which 112 houses were destroyed.

CAIRO, June 13.—Some excitement was caused here on account of the conversion of a young Mahomedan by American missionaries. Arab fanatics attempted to maltreat the convert, but the British consul general protected him. It is probable that he will be sent to Cyprus for safety.

DUBLIN, June 13.—Poole, charged with the murder of Kenny in Seville place, was arraigned this morning. The government stated that they proposed to prove that the prisoner had boasted that he killed Kenny. Poole was remanded to await the arrival of a witness from America.

An inquiry in the murder of Lord Mount Morris has been in progress at Clanbur for the past week. It is expected that a number of other arrests will be made of the persons suspected connected with the murder.

STOCKHOLM, June 13.—Theyselius, formerly minister of the interior, has been sworn in as prime minister. The other ministers who recently tendered their resignations, have resumed their portfolios.

DUBLIN, June 13.—Small, Parnellite, has been elected without opposition to the house of commons for the county of Wexford, made vacant by the resignation of Byrne, home ruler.

SOFIA, June 13.—The British diplomatic agent here, with the approval of the British government, has severed his relations with the Bulgarian government. Other foreign representatives share the views of the British as consider the present government without authority.

ST. PETERSBURG, June 13.—An explosion occurred to day in the gunpowder factory at Ochta, one mile east of this city. Three stories of barracks at Kaluga, in the government of the same name, fell in to-day, killing ten persons, and injuring many more. It stated that in consequence of the riots which occurred during the coronation week, the chief of the Moscow police is about to be replaced by the chief of St. Petersburg police. The principal firms here are required to furnish written promises not to give their workmen holiday on the occasion of the czar's state entry into the capitol, the object being to prevent further disorder.

PARIS, June 13.—La Liberte says two envoys from the Annamite king arrived at Sargen, and protested against the action of the French at Xanoio. They said the king desired a peaceful solution of the present difficulty.

SOUTH AMERICAN WARMTH.

Bloodshed and Revolutions Still Actively Present With Our Neighbors.

PANAMA, June 13.—The revolution in Ecuador has not terminated. The rebels surround Guayaquil, and by feints and light attacks keep Veintimilla and his troops on a continual move. Alfaro and Sarasti are gradually tightening around the city. All the stores are closed at nightfall. Foreigners have placards on their houses, declaring their ownership by neutrals. Provisions are scarce. Alfaro's men made a pretended attack on the town on the 23d ultimo. Firing commenced at 1 a. m. and was kept up until 3 o'clock, and some sixty cannon shots were fired. Some small shells fell in the city, but did no harm. The revolutionists avoid any conflict which may expose the city, while the dictators' object is evidently so to compromise matters, as to ensure the destruction of the town. The land wire which connects Guayaquil with the cable on the coast has been interrupted by the rebels, and nothing will be heard from that port until its capture.

The American schooner Ounalouski recently arrived at Acajutla with a load of munitions of war shipped by Jutte, of San Francisco, for revolutionary purposes. On landing the captain was joyfully received by the authorities, who declared themselves to be rebels, and the arms were at once unloaded. When 1,000 rifles, 400 cases of cartridges, two cases of sabres and ten cases of bayonets had beed disembarked the captain was informed that there was a revolution in the country, and that his vessel and cargo were seized and he and his crew prisoners. He was furious at being thus trapped, but his rage was unavailing. The arms are now in the service of the regularly appointed constitutional government, of which President Zuldmar is the head.

BENNINGSEN'S RETIREMENT.

Why Bismarck Sought Aid from the Ultramontaine Members.

BERLIN, June 13.—In relation to the retirement from political life of Herr Von Benningsen, it is stated that after the receipt of the last note addressed to Prussia by the vatican, Prince Bismarck was undecided as to whether he should break off negotiations with the vatican. He therefore sounded Herr Von Benningsen on the subject of effecting a compromise with the latter's party, the national liberals. The interview convinced both that a common policy was impossible, and Prince Bismarck decided to rely on the clerical and conservative majority. In the debate yesterday on the church bill in the lower house of the landtag, Herr Windthorst, ultramontane leader reiterated the hope that the government and the conservatives would unite and improve the bill by accepting the amendments proposed by the center party. If they did not accept them, he said the center would reject the whole measure. The special committee of the reichstag, which was appointed to consider the workmen's accident insurance bill, recommended that parliament decline to accept the proposals of the government, and demand a new bill allowing rural laborers to share the benefits of insurance against accident.

FORAKER IN OHIO.

The Colored Voters Do Not Take Kindly to the Nominee.

WASHINGTON, June 13.—A very prominent colored republican from Ohio, now holding a position in one of the government departments in this city, said to a reporter yesterday: "The republicans of Ohio will never elect Foraker. The colored element throughout the state will not vote for him. Several weeks ago, when the question of his possible nomination for governor came up, a movement was staried to find out who Foraker was. I was in this city at the time, and I knew the man and promptly informed my friends that he was the lawyer who figured against the civil rights bill before the state supreme court to the detriment of the colored people. That fact remembered, the colored people are now up in arms against him. In Greene county the colored republicans have already passed resolutions repudiating the nomination and have appointed a committee to canvass the state to urge his defeat."

The informant of the reporter exhibited letters and telegrams in corroboration of his statement. The gentleman is a well known politician. His work for the republicans in the west is known, and what he asserts concerning the possible defeat of Foraker, can not be questioned, being the views of a careful and far-seeing man.

A MILLIONAIRE'S FALL.

The Suicide by Drowning of William A. Putney, of Massachusetts.

BOSTON, June 13.—William A. Putney was at one time the proprietor of one of the largest dry goods houses of Chicago, and rated among the millionaires. Through business depression and bad investments he became hopelessly involved, and was finally obliged to give up his business on account of impaired health. Without money he returned east, and obtained the position of a salesman with Shepard, Normell & Co. The firm has been missing considerable valuable goods, and detectives traced the thefts to Putney, and he was arrested at his summer cottage at Nantasket.

The officers, with their prisoner, took steamer for Boston, and at Putney's solicitation did not put irons on him. Putney desired to avoid people that he might know on the boat and was allowed to move about. Suddenly, while chatting with the officers, he plunged overboard. He was taken from the water by the boat's crew and everything done to resuscitate him, but he died in about ten minutes. His age was fifty-two. A large amount of stolen property was found in his residence at Boston and Nantasket.

The Continental Guards.

BOSTON, June 13.—The Continental Guards, of New Orleans, arrived this morning by the Fall river line, and were received by the National Lancers, the Charlestown Cadets and a large crowd. A salute was fired, and after the usual courtesies, the companies marched to the city hall, where Mayor Palmer welcomed the visitors to Boston, the response being made by Judge H. Braughn. The Guards were then escorted to the hotel.

A Decrease of Ten Millions.

WASHINGTON, June 13—The comparative statement prepared at the treasury department shows that the revenues of the government for the first eleven months of the fiscal year of 1883 have decreased $7,173,940. It is estimated that the decrease for the year will be about $10,000,000.

FOR HIS LIFE.

THE PERIL OF BEN AND HOLLAND MITCHELL.

Muscogee Court Engaged Upon the Trial of a Grave Crime—A Negro Kills the Father of a Boy Whom He Had Whipped—The Circumstances Concerning the Affair, Etc.

COLUMBUS, Ga., June 13.—Henry P. Wynne, of Talbot county, was not murdered at Doboise, as telegraphed yesterday, but a negro of the same name was the victim, hence the error. On the opening of Muscogee court this morning, the cases of Ben and Holland Mitchell, charged with the murder of Mr. J. B. Wright, was put on trial. The state is represented by Solicitor Grimes, Captain Reese Crawford, Colonel B. A. Thornton and J. M. McNeill, and the defense by Governor J. M. Smith, J. M. Russell and Jno. Peabody. After exhausting a venire of one hundred, the following jury was empannelled: J. K. Dimon, C. K. Redd, J. R. Brooks, H. F. Everett, Joel D. Johnson, J. M. Estes, R. M. Kirven, W. L. Tillman, John B. Haynes, J. A. Cartledge, J. A. Rankin, Richard Slade. After the examination of several witnesses, the court adjourned to nine o'clock to-morrow morning. Great interest is manifested in the trial and the court room has been packed all day. No new facts have yet been developed by rhe testimony.

The crime was committed about twelve o'clock on Monday, July 3d, 1882, in front of Holland Mitchell's house, in what is known as the Northern Liberties, just north of the city. Ben Mitchell lived about a quarter of a mile farther north, and up the river from Holland's, where he had a small farm. On Friday evening before the shooting, George Wright, thirteen years old, a son of the deceased, Stanley Willett and a negro boy, about the same age, named Henry Jackson went up the river to "go in washing." After they came out it was proposed that they go into the watermelon patch of Ben Mitchell, near by, and get some melons. As they went into the patch they were spied by Ben and his nephew, who were at work in an adjoining field. As Ben came up Stanley Willett and Henry Jackson ran off, but George Wright stood his ground and was caught by the negroes, who thrashed him. George hid his shame, but some one told his father of it on Saturday evening, when he and his brothers repaired to the house of Ben Mitchell in quest of him and the boy. Luckily for Ben he was not at home, but his nephew was not so fortunate and the Messrs. Wright took him out and flogged him severely. The search for Ben was continued through Saturday night, but without avail. On Monday morning Ben Mitchell came into the city armed with a double-barreled shot gun and repaired to the office of Justice N. L. Redd for the purpose of having a warrant issued for the arrest of the Messrs. Wright. In the meantime Holland Mitchell had gone to the Enquirer office, where he had a conference with Mr. Wright and prevailed on him to abstain from further action in the matter. Holland then found his brother at Redd's office and stopped further legal proceedings. All parties now thought the trouble ended, but not so. About 11 o'clock a messenger came to Mr. J. B. Wright from his brother, stating that the negroes were swaggering around the Northern Liberties, threatening to kill him on sight. Fearing that his brothers might get into trouble with the negroes, he went up to his mother's, and learning that one of them had gone to Ben Mitchell's, he started after him. When in front of Holland Mitchell's gate he was shot down by Ben, who at once ran into the city and gave himself up to Sheriff Burrus, who placed him in jail. Holland was arrested the same evening, and was also placed in jail. The following statements were made by the negroes to a Times reporter a few hours after the shooting:

HOLLAND MITCHELL'S STATEMENT.

I called on Mr. Wright yesterday morning at the Enquirer office, and after expostulating with him and explaining to him that my brother did not know his boy, he said he would do nothing more in the matter. With a great load lifted from my mind I went back to Ben, who was at Judge Redd's office, preparing to swear out warrants for the arrest of the Messrs. Wright. I told him what Mr. Wright had said and advised him to drop the whole matter, which he did. I thought the taking out of the warrants would stir up the Wrights again, so I stopped. We went on up home and on the way told several persons the matter was settled, I felt so good about it. Just before we got home we were told that Mr. Lovick Wright had gone up to my brother's house, and we started up that way. When we got to the corner above my house I saw Mr. Lovick Wright coming from towards my brother's I told Ben to go back. When Mr. Wright met me he pointed a pistol at me, and I asked him not to shoot me. He said he would not, and we walked down towards the Columbus and Rome railroad, and I told him I had seen Mr. Jesse Wright and we had settled the whole affair. About this time I heard pistol shots, and running back to the house, found Mr. J. B. Wright lying on the sidewalk in front. He saw me and said: "Holland, raise my head," which I did. Mr. Lovick Wright then came up and commenced shooting in the house.

BEN MITCHELL'S STATEMENT.

Friday evening I was in the field with my nephew hoeing when we saw three boys in the watermelon patch. I slipped down there and two of the boys saw me and ran off. The other stopped to pull a melon, when I hollered at him. I told my nephew to cut a switch and then told the boy to run, and if my nephew did not catch him we would do nothing with him. He ran and my nephew after him, striking him with the switch as he ran. He did not strike him more than a dozen times. On Saturday evening some men came to my house and thrashed my nephew severely, and told my wife they would get me. Yesterday I went down to Judge Redd's to get out a warrant for the Wrights, when Holland came in and said it was all settled. We went up home. Before I got there George Sturkie told me one of the Wrights had gone to my house after me. Me and Holland started up there, when we saw one of the Wrights coming. I run in William Thomas's yard. After he and Holland went off I started back to Holland's house. I saw a man with an umbrella coming. When he got nearly to me he said: "That's not you, Holland, is it?" I replied, "No, this is Ben Mitchell." He then said, "Yes, and I am going to kill you," with epithets. And throwing down his umbrella, he drew a pistol and I drew mine. We both shot about the same time. I shot three times, and I think he shot about the same number of times, I don't know exactly. He fell and I run down town, and did not stop until I found Mr. Burrus and gave myself up.

Mr. Wright was borne to his mothers house where he lingered until August 1st, and died. The ball entered the right side and ranging down lodged in the spinal column. He was a printer by trade and at the time of his death and for years before was foreman of the Enquirer office.

THE ASHLAND TRAGEDY.

A Negro Named Direly Confesses Himself to be Guilty of the Murder.

CINCINNATI, June 13.—Publication is made here to-day of the arrest on Monday afternoon, at Columbus, Ohio, of W. M. Direly, a negro, charged with the murder of the Gibbons children at Ashland, Ky., on December 24, 1881. The arrest of Direly is upon a long tracing of circumstantial evidence, in connection with a statement make by Direly himself, and leave no doubt as to his being the real murderer. Nannie and Robbie Gibbons and Emma Carico, were found dead in the burning house. The girls had been outraged. Three men were arrested—George Ellis, William Neal and Ellis Craft. Ellis made a confession upon which he was convicted and sentenced to be hung, but was hung by a mob. Neal and Craft were also sentenced to be hanged, and now await the decision of the governor as to the day of the execution. Not much weight is given to the arrest of Direly for the murder of the Gibbons family.

CINCINNATI, June 13.—The Commercial Gazette's Catlettsburg, Ky., special says: William Direly, arrested in Columbus and brought here by detective Burnett, denies all knowledge of the Gibbon's murder, and says he never made a confession. The arrest is regarded here as an effort to save Craft. Good counsel will defend Direly at the exam-

THE FATAL RISK.

A Woman Who Chanced Death in a Surgical Operation.

CHICAGO, June 13.—Miss Sarah Raymond, forty-six, had for several years been afflicted with a swelling in her neck which gradually grew until it was nearly as large as her head. Recently it began to affect her breathing, until it became a matter of choice, whether she should be slowly strangled to death or risk an operation. Concerning the latter, she was advised by her doctors that it might result in death. She determined, however, to take the chances, and yesterday evening, after wishing her brother and sister an affectionate farewell, she went to the Mercy hospital, where Dr. Edward Andrews and several assistants were to perform the operation. She was placed under the influence of ether and conveyed to the lecture room, where a number of prominent physicians had assembled. Two incisions were made, one at the base and the other at the upper right hand side. Immediately the breathing and the heart's action became embarrassed, and in a few moments the patient was dead. The swelling under microscopic inspection, was found to be a soft cancer. It reached from the chin to the breast, and was thirty-seven inches in circumference.

This was buried in the ground the top four or five feet beneath the surface, in the bottom of the vessel was a round hole that encircled the neck of the corpse, the head being in the vessel and the body beneath it, the vessel being evidently made around the neck. THE CRAZY DISTRICT.

Special to The Constitution.

GRIFFIN, June 13.—Another lunatic was brought down this morning on the Carrollton train from the crazy district that seems to flourish on that line in that particular section of the state. It appears that they carry somebody from up that way to the asylum every few days. This was a colored man, and I was informed by the guard that the negro's condition only dates back to about two weeks ago. He was at work in the field, when he suddenly dropped his hoe, remarking at the time "I'm called off and must be going, so farewell to this world and you sinners." To all appearances he has been "off" ever since. While here he slept most of the time, being under the influence of morphine, but the guard told as soon as the effects of the opiate ceased that he would rise to his feet and out preach anybody within a radius of five hundred miles, and hold out longer at it. I told him then for heaven's sake to let him rest, as we have a few of the same kind here, and that we couldn't stand too much of a good thing.

GEORGIA GOSSIP.

SHORT TALK WITH THE SCRIBES OF THE COUNTRY PRESS.

A Protest Against Public Hangings—A Horned Snake—Reunion of the 531 Georgia—Enoch Martin's Surprise—Returned Home—The Lunatic Asylum—Ben Brockins's Daughter.

Says the Walton News: We protest against any more public hangings. The mania which causes people to ride for miles and miles to see a doomed man hung by the neck is a feature in the human character which we cannot understand. Hanging in a quiet jail yard, hidden from the gaze of an excited crowd, is much more terrible and will have a much greater tendency to prevent crime. It is discretionary with the judges whether executions be public or private, and we do hope they will exercise their powers by ordering them to be strictly private.

Mr. Perry Smith last Friday killed a horned snake five feet long. The horn was on the tip of the tail, and looked very much like a rooster's spur. These snakes have stings in their horns, and are said to be very poisonous Company F., of the old 531 Georgia regiment, proposes to have a re-union at McDonough, during the summer.

Hinesville Gazette: Mr. Enoch Martin of Taylor's creek, who by the way, is a successful farmer, arose at an early hour one morning last week and looked over in a five-acre field of forward corn. As soon as he looked, he felt bad, and the longer he looked the worse he felt. The cause of his bad feelings can be easily explained. A large herd of cattle belonging to a neighbor found a weak place in the fence, and spent the night in the field.

Talbot county is now out of debt and has one thousand dollars in the treasury. The result is ascribed to the management of the commissioners, Messrs. W. E. Williams, J. L. Dozier and Moses Hollis.

Talbotton New Era: Mr. R. S. Kendrick, a former resident of Talbot county, but now of Sumter county, Florida, is visiting relatives in the valley. Mr Kendrick removed from Talbot to Alabama in 1857; from Alabama he removed to his present home in 1869, where he has since resided. Mr. Kendrick is a brother of the late Burke Kendrick, of this county. He notes many changes in Talbotton since his departure, and made many inquiries as to old residents, the response to most of the questions being "dead."

The trustees of the lunatic asylum met on Friday and Saturday of last week. Dr. Thomas H. Kenan, first assistant physician, retires: Dr, Jas. M. Whitaker, second assistant physician, was appointed first assistant physician in place of Dr. Kenan. Dr. I. H. Hall was promoted to Dr. Whitaker's place; Dr. Jones was made third assistant physician, and the board elected Dr. O'Daniel, of Americus, fourth assistant physician.

Millidgeville Union: On Wednesday, June 6, Ben Brookins, a white citizen of this county, shot and killed York Cooper a young negro man, on Henry Wyse's place. Brookins' daughter had a baby, and she confessed that the father of the child was York Cooper. Thereupon Brookins took his gun, and went to the field where Cooper was plowing, and shot him twice, once near the heart and once on the hip. Coroner Scott held an inquest on the body the same day. There was only one witness, a negro, examined. He heard the firing, saw Cooper fall, but did not hear what words passed between Brookins and deceased. The negro, Cooper had been raised in Brookins' family. The verdict of the jury justified Brookins in the killing. A warrant having been taken out for the arrest of Brookins, he gave himself up to the sheriff and was lodged in jail. The commitment trial will probably take place to-day and a bond be given. By request of Brookins the writer visited him at the jail yesterday morning. Mr. Brookins states that his daughter, about fifteen years of age, had an infant recently, and when he tried to find out the author of her misfortune she candidly and contritely said that no man but York Cooper, who lived with her father last year, had ever touched her criminally. Again and again she protested that this was the truth. Satisfied of the statement of the girl he (Brookins) got his gun and went over to a place he had rented, and found Cooper plowing. He told Cooper what he (Cooper) had done, and he had come to settle the matter. Cooper made a movement either for resistance, or retreat, when he shot him. Brookins feels keenly the necessity for the act he committed, but says the matter had troubled him so much, and to show his young daughters that he had done all he could to wipe out the stain on his family and set an example that might do good, he was compelled to do the deed. The girl told her father that she was very sorry for it all, and that it was against her will that Cooper had violated her person in the first place.

Talbotton Register: Last Saturday a colored man called at the New Era office and paid us $1.00 for six months subscription to this paper. His name is Louis Holloway, and he lives on the farm of Colonel James D. Hough, in Talbot valley. He is a colored man and knows it, and is not ashamed to have due regard for those whom he knows are his superiors. He is a hard working, honest man; makes plenty to live on at home and always has the ready money to meet contingent expenses. We knew Louis in 1876-77 when we were at school in the valley. He has been on the same farm for twelve years and we expect he will remain there till his death. He owns his own stock and is doing well.

The Mercury says that no better evidence can we produced of the prosperity of Washington county than to know that she has consumed but one-half the quantity of western bacon she did last year, and so far as we can learn, there has not been a bushel of western corn sold in Sandersville this year.

Griffin News: Justice Sherill was engaged yesterday morning in hearing the case of Jones vs. Allen, which proved of vast interest to the spectators. The facts in the case are about as follows:

Jones, a beef peddler, left his wagon in front of Patrick's shoe store a few days ago, to attend to some business elsewhere. During his absence a party came up who desired to purchase some meat, and to make the sale for Jones, a young man clerking at Patrick's called on Allen to wait on the customer. This he did, selling a small quantity of steak for 15 cents. On Jones's return the amount was tendered to him, which he, however, refused to accept, claiming that 40 cents worth of meat had disappeared. The result was the swearing out of a warrant charging Allen with simple larceny, and he is now under bond in the amount of $25, to answer the above charge at the next term of the county court,

Columbus Times: From parties who came in on the freight train last night, we learn that Mr. J. T. Trice, of Talbotton, received a dispatch yesterday calling him to Dupont, and announcing that his brother-in-law, Henry P. Wynne had been murdered at Stub's saw mill at that place the night before, No details of the sad occurrence were given. Mr. Wynne is a son of Dr. Wynne, of Geneva, a young man scarce twenty one years of age and leaves a bride of less that twelve months. His wife is a daughter of the late William Smith, of Box springs and sister of Mr. J. D. Smith of that place. Dupont is on the Macon and Brunswick railroad.

Biliousness and Bilious Patients.

Pertaining to Bile, Bilious Symptoms, Bilious Temperaments. THE REMEDY.

The Bilious, is a disorder of the human system. A technical definition of the term is this: "Pertaining to the bile; disordered in respect to the bile; as, a bilious patient; dependant on an excess of bile; as, bilious temperament; bilious symptoms."

The word bile, when employed in the sense in which it is understood in this article, signifies, according to the Dictionaries, "a yellow, greenish, bitter, viscid, nauseous fluid secreted by the liver." "Any derangement of the bile at once manifests itself in great bodily discomfort, in loss of appetite, and in despondency," recently remarked an author of a valuable treatise upon this subject.

The same writer further adds: "Some of the following symptoms are usually prominent: Pain in the right side, which is very sensitive to pressure. The pain will sometimes appear to be located under the shoulder blade. There is also irregular appetite, flatulence, a sense of fullness in the region of the stomach, and, sooner or later, the skin and whites of the eyes become yellow, the stools clay-colored and the urine yellow, depositing a copious sediment." The balance of the too familiar train of ills needs no further mention here. The bilious is, as will be seen, is an affliction of great magnitude, and of varied forms of direct and indirect appearance. The disease is no respecter of persons or localities. Its deadly and implacable enemy is found in

KIDNEY WORT.

It acts on the liver and kidneys at the same time, and by its mild but efficient cathartic effects moves the bowels freely. The morbid poisons that have been the cause of all this disease and suffering will be thrown off; new life will be infused into every organ, and nature, thus aided, will soon restore the patient to health.

Physicians of repute and standing, men who are honored for their probity, and respected and trusted for their scientific attainments, are using Kidney-Wort in their practice regularly. No stronger evidence of the worth of the remedy would seem to be necessary. Such endorsements are few and far between. We had almost said that they were without precedent in the history of a proprietary remedy. Be that as it may, however, the fact remains established that Kidney-Wort is a matchless remedy, and one that needs only to be tested to demonstrate its rare merit as a healer of most of the common maladies of the human family.

DR. PHILLIP C. BALLOU, lives in Monkton, Vt. Under date of April 20th, 1882, the doctor wrote to the proprietors of Kidney-Wort, and said, among other things; "Nearly a year ago I wrote you about the success I had had in the use of Kidney-Wort in my practice. The past year I have used it more than ever, and with the best results. It cured Mr. Ethan Lawrence, of this town, of a terrible case of bloated kidney disorder. I have also treated many other diseases successfully with it. Constipation, in all its forms, yields to it, and in rheumatic affections I have known it to give almost immediate relief. In female disorders it is equally successful. Take it all in all it is the most wonderful medicine I have ever used." Dr. Ballou does not stand alone in his experience with this remedy. R. K. Clark, M. D., of South Hero, Vt., says: "Kidney-Wort does all that is claimed for it." Whilst Dr. C. M. Summerlin, of Sun Hill, Washington Co., Georgia, says, in a nut-shell: "Kidney-Wort cured my wife when my own and other physicians' prescriptions only palliated her troubles."

THE OLD BLOCKHOUSE STILL STANDING AT CUSSETA.

An Old Fashioned Chair—Arbor Vitae Bushes—Granny Aultman's Work—An Old Gourd—Published in 1840—An Aged Carriage—A Fight in 1836—Excitement in Carrol in 1831.

Special to the Constitution.

CUSSETA, Ala., June 13.—Just fifty years ago a block house was built at this point for the protection of our countrymen. That house has served its purpose well, saved the lives of many from the marauding Indians, and today it is still standing, but answering another purpose. It is now weatherboarded and used for a storehouse by T. E. Shealy. For a half century this building has stood, and to day its timbers are as sound as ever. About one-half mile from here was the old block store, once a celebrated Indian trading post, and here lived also two noted Indian chiefs. Many of Alabama's names are of the Indian language. The definitions of some are beautiful, others amusing. Our little town is beautifully situated and very healthy. We have two churches and a fine school, taught by Professor Slaughter. The society as fine as any place.

We have had fine rains; our crops are very good; wheat and oats splendid.

AN OLD-FASHIONED CHAIR.

From the Albany News.

Mr. W. H. Wilder, of this city, has an old-fashioned split-bottomed chair that is known to have been in use seventy-five years. He bought it at a sale over thirty years ago, and its history was given for forty years previous to that time. It is still hale and hearty and promises to last for seventy five years to come.

ARBOR VITAE BUSHES.

From the Americus Recorder.

Over fourteen years ago eight small arbor vitae bushes were procured from a florist in Atlanta and placed in lot 192 Oak Grove cemetery. These bushes are now higher than a man can reach, and from the seed of them numerous plants have been obtained. They are the only ones of the kind ever brought here.

GRANNY AULTMAN'S WORK.

From the Montezuma Record.

Old "Granny" Aultman, 89 years of age, residing in this county, has nearly an acre planted in corn and vegetables. She prepared the land herself with a hoe, and has cultivated it herself. Her vegetables are fine and her corn is looking well. She is an emblem of pluck and industry.

AN OLD GOURD.

From the Crawford News.

Mr. H. C. Bugg, of the Falling Creek neighborhood, has the oldest gourd in the county, and probably the oldest in the state. It is some where about 150 or 175 years old. Mr. B. is about 50 years of age, and he says his great-grandfather owned and used the gourd for a powder gourd. It is so old and firm that its polish, from use, seems as if it was made of mahogany.

A FIGHT IN 1836.

From the Americus Recorder.

Near where the railroad crosses the Kinchafoonee creek, between Smithville and Brown Station, a fight in 1836 occurred between a party of whites and Creek Indians. One Indian was killed and several wounded, but the loss of the whites was slight. The Indians were endeavoring to make their way to Florida and unite with the Seminoles of the Everglades.

AN AGED CARRIAGE.

From the Americus Recorder.

The past few days J. W. Harris & Co., have been breaking up, for the iron that was in it, an old family carriage belonging to T. M. Furlow. The carriage was purchased about 1853 at a cost of about $1,500, and was in its time the handsomest carriage in southwest Georgia. It was substantially made and was very heavy, having iron axles and the body being heavily ironed, the iron being of fine quality. The iron from it is being made into plow sweeps, twenty-four of them having already been sold to C. C. Clay. From being a thing of beauty, the old carriage is becoming an article of use.

AN INDIAN FIGHT IN 1831.

From the Carroll County Times.

The killing of Caloway Burk in 1831 is probably remembered by few. Hawkin Phillips, John Goodin, and five Indians spent the night at my father's, and inquired for stolen cattle. I had seen the cattle driven by Burk, Upton and others in the direction of Almon's cane brake, near the present site of Buckhorn tavern, where by my direction the cattle were found next morning, and driven back to Alabama by the Indians, Goodin and others going on to hunt the thieves. Through fear of the Pony club Almon would not allow them to stay all night, but loaned them a gun, and they started to Hickstown, now Villa Rica. After crossing the Tallapoosa near where Mr. Hart afterwards settled, they met Burk and others all armed. Goodin's party were on the alert, and each party soon detected the character of the other. Burk leveled his gun, and Goodin shot him dead. I have frequently seen Goodin in Carrollton since, and served in the Seminole war with him three months in 1836. About the time of Burk's death the Slicks were organized as an antidote for the "Pony club." The Slicks lynched several of the club, and were prosecuted for it, Jones for prosecution, and Thomas Chandler for the defense.

The smiling, prosperous county of Carroll, stands out in striking contrast, with the wild battle ground of the "Pony club" and the Slicks of 1831.

TWO GARDENS OF ROSES.

Those of Bancroft, the Historian, and Corcoran, the Philanthropist.

Special Correspondence of the Times.

WASHINGTON, June 11.—Mr. Bancroft's rose garden is now in its prime. He has attached to his Washington residence a lot in the rear, planted in grass, which belonged to the house when he bought it, and another much larger one, fifty by one hundred feet, at right angles with it, which he purchased later. This is all planted in roses of the choicest varieties that will grow in the open air. The high fences enclosing the garden are fairly lined with roses, which are trained against their sides, as also are honeysuckles. A rose house, with glass roof, is on one side the garden, in which there is never any artificial heat, but Mr. Bancroft uses it only that he may have his pets bloom earlier in the spring than they would out of doors. In the main portion of the garden rose bushes, supported by slender sticks, are planted as thickly as is possible for them to be, consistent with neatness and conditions favorable to their growth.

Narrow paths run between the rows, through which their owner walks in mingled pride and tenderness. There are over five hundred varieties, and he can call each of his pets by name without a moment's hesitation. He visits them regularly between eight and nine every morning, clipping off blossoms past their prime and twigs that need cutting. He says, as an instance of how fashions change in flowers, as in everything else, that there are not half a dozen different kinds of fine roses cultivated now which were grown by rose-fanciers twenty years ago. He has himself been a rose-culturist many years, he says, and there are only two or three kinds now in general use which were cultivated when he first began.

Mr. Bancroft is working very hard on his history, saying in as matter of fact a way as if he were speaking of something that must be done before taking an ordinary journey: "You know I have not long to stay, and whatever I do must be done quickly." These long mornings he often begins work at four o'clock. He takes a light breakfast always, and afterwards walks in his garden, and by nine o'clock goes to his study, where he remains until near two o'clock, when after a substantial lunch he takes his ride on horseback. He is willing to see those with whom he is well acquainted while in his garden, or in the evenings after half-past seven, for he does all his literary work in the early part of the day, but while he is in his study, no one is allowed to disturb him.

One square east of Mr. Bancroft's garden is that of another octagenarian, Mr. W. W. Corcoran, who is over two years his senior. Mr. Corcoran's garden, attached to his Washington residence, is nearly as large as Lafayette square, on which his house fronts. On the west side it extends all the way from H to I streets along Connecticut avenue, and at the back it runs along I street from Connecticut avenue to Sixteenth street, but as a portion of it runs back of the house adjoining Mr. Corcoran's and the next lot it is not all of uniform depth. It is very neatly kept, but has known few, if any, alterations in the past quarter of a century, so is an old-fashioned garden and contains none of the new varieties of flowers. It has many evergreens and enormous bushes of myrtle and a few of the blossoming species of fruit trees, a well-kept lawn near the house and beyond it a fountain and many flower beds, approached by circuitous gravel walks. There are verbenas, pink and red carnations, large bushes of mock-orange, covered with blossoms, and flowering geraniums and heliotropes. The rear of the garden is mostly given up to roses, but they are the roses of a quarter of a century ago, not the fashionable kinds of to-day. There are moss roses, both white and pink, and other varieties which when planted were the choicest money could buy. The very high brick walls which effectually conceal the garden from the streets on which it borders are entirely lined with luxuriant ivy.

Messrs. STEELE & PRICE,

Gentlemen:—After the examination of many samples of Baking Powders, which I purchased in the open market, I find DR. PRICE'S CREAM BAKING POWDER to be a superior article, free from any adulturant or deleterious chemical, such as Terra Alba, Alum, etc. I find it to be composed of articles of a superior quality, combined in such proportions as to render the greatest volume of Carbonic Acid Gas, which shows it to be a perfect powder, based on scientific formulæ. I find it to contain no Ammonia compounds, which are products of animal and vegetable decomposition, and which I would consider unhealthful, inasmuch as it is absorbed by the dough to a certain extent in the baking process. In fact, by my examination and experiments I am led to believe "Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder" to be a superior article, and one for efficiency and healthfulness, I would not hesitate to recommend.

Respectfully, C. B. GIBSON,

DEATH TO BLOOD POISON.

It uproots the virus, separates it from the Blood, and drives it out through the pores of the skin.

We are aware that we are combating a popular and prevailing prejudice, both of the profession and people, when we assert, that we can and do cure diseases of the blood with a vegetable remedy. We ourselves were not easily convinced. But does it make anything less a fact simply because you do not believe it? Turn to history and read the accounts of the discovery and application of steam, railroads, electricity, etc. Were not those who preached that it was possible to accomplish such grand results, as we see realized to-day, pronounced crazy? And did not scientists say "impossible?" We do not ask that you accept our word. We bring corroborating testimony. In short, we demonstrate by living, reliable witnesses, that every word we say is true.

We do not claim our remedy to be a triumph of science, but we do believe it a Revelation, through the instinct of untutored Indian. Write for little book.

THE CONSTITUTION,
Atlanta, Georgia.

ATLANTA, GA., JUNE 14, 1883.

Indications for the south Atlantic states lightly cooler, partly cloudy weather and light rains, winds shifting to north and wes , higher barometer.

Foraker is not popular with the colored men of Ohio. They recollect him as the enemy of civil rights, and propose to keep on sawing wood when election day comes.

Dukes has paid the price of foolhardiness and a terrible crime against society has been avenged by the unerring bullet of a aon of the man whom he had murdered. It is one of these cases in which feeling usurps the place of the law.

It does not fall to the lot of many to handle millions, but all can enjoy the satisfaction of reading about them. The appearance of the Shorter heirs in our own home court gives a local bearing to the disposition of thousands about which the struggle is made.

A notable increase is noted in the tax returns of many counties, indicating the success of the people. It is not confined to the manufacturing counties, but extends into the farming communities, as for instance, Early county, in which the increase is twenty per cent.

The Rome Courier states that the coal used in Atlanta. and quoted at prices below the price of coal in Rome, must be of an inferior grade. In that connection the editor corrects one or two other very grievous faults in a former article. Rome and Atlanta are not to quarrel with each other, but it is only just to Atlanta that the fact be stated. The coal sold in Atlanta at $2.63 per ton is a first class article of manufacturers' coal, and is as good as any manufacturer cares to use or does use, either in Rome or Atlanta.

THE IRON TRADE.

While the iron market shows improvement in some respects, yet the eastern pig iron men are not happy. At the beginning of this month there were 688 furnaces in this country, of which 351 were in blast and 337 out of it. Of the 337 out of blast probably not over 7 are located in the southern states. About one-half of the northern furnaces, in other words, are as cold as they were before fires were lighted in them.

The Philadelphia Ledger says the Pennsylvania iron men are fully convinced that the making of pig iron must be gradually removed from Pennsylvania to other fields. The transfer will be made slowly, and the Ledger finds cause for congratulation in the fact that Pennsylvanians are preparing to control the new fields. It costs from $18 to $19.50 to make a ton of pig iron at Harrisburg; about $20 a ton in the Lehigh valley, and from $17 to $18 a ton in western Pennsylvania. The market price is below the cost of production at all these places. These facts are inducing the iron men to look in earnest for localities where the ores, coal and limestone lie close together; and just now their chief attention is turned toward the rich mineral deposits of southwestern Virginia. The town of Roanoke which has suddenly sprung from a hamlet of 500 people to a promising town of 6,000, is perhaps the central railroad point of this new iron district. Coal is not as cheap in this region as it will be, and yet it is estimated that pig iron can be made at Roanoke at $12.60 a ton, at Milnes on the Shenandoah valley road at $12.55 a ton, at Buchanan on the James river at $12.94 a ton, and at New river, in the Flat Top coal region, as low as $11 a ton. "The faith that the Pennsylvanians," says the Philadelphia Ledger, "have in these new enterprises is shown by the millions of money they are now putting into their development, and this will before long have a radical effect upon the iron industries of the country."

The fact that the eyes of the eastern iron men are turned southward is enough. The fact that the movement has begun is all the southern country need want at present; for it is really a confession that the center of the vast industry can no longer be kept by tariff taxation in Pennsylvania and Ohio, and that its removal to the south is inevitable. This grand movement will not culminate in a year or in ten years, but it will gradually fill the southern country with a vast population, and there will not be a foot of southern soil that will not feel its beneficial effects. The stagnation in the trade is hastening the change, and if congress could be induced to lower the duties in the metal schedule, there would be none so blind that they could not see the advantages the south offers for the making of iron. Perhaps it is best however that the center of the industry should be moved slowly, now that its removal is admitted to be beyond question.

THE STAR ROUTE TRIAL.

As we write, the star route case is in the hands of a petit jury, one of whom is a confirmed drunkard, and most of whom are densely ignorant. Let us hope, however, all twelve are honest men, drunk or sober, stupid or intelligent; and that a verdict will be rendered, and the public relieved of a public bore. The case just submitted was begun in December, 1882, and it dragged its slow length along, blocked at every turn by the lawyers, until the nine-day speech of Mr. Merrick put an end to the talking part of the case. It is over a year since the first trial began. This trial resulted in the conviction of two of the promptly set the verdict aside. Brady who is in office, and Dorsey who stood high in the councils of the republican party, are the men who are guilty of frauds, if any were committed, and it must be admitted that the government has acted fearlessly and well in its efforts to punish these men and their associates. If the befuddled brains of the jury should not be equal to a verdict, it is certain that star-route frauds are no longer probable, and that all men who are inclined to put their hands in the public purse will hesitate after reading the story of this trial. If the conspirators are not sent to the penitentiary, they are ruined in purse and reputation. It has been an ordeal that no man, no matter how strong his nerves might be, could stand without deep shame and pain. No doubt the trials have been expensive, but the investment will last through a generation, and if all its effects could be ascertained, it would be found that money was never expended to better purpose from the public purse.

THE FALL ELECTIONS.

Elections are to be held in twelve states in August, October and November, and with the revival of interest in politics as the presidential election approaches, there is increased interest in these preliminary struggles. The Kentucky election in August will not attract much attention, but the October elections in Ohio and Iowa will be closely watched. Ohio will undoubtedly be the pivot upon which presidential programmes of all kinds will turn. Governor Foster carried the state two years ago by about 25,000 majority, but last year the democrats very nearly reversed this result, and all the party divisions and liquor troubles that beset the republicans last year are still actively at work. If the democrats carry the state by a majority that exceeds 15,000, no one of sense will deny their power to carry the country in 1884. The successful democratic candidates for governor of Ohio may indeed become the head of the presidential ticket. If, however, the election should be close, it is not improbable that the candidates of the two parties would both be taken from this pivotal state. If the republicans carry the state by a large majority this fall, it is plain the stiffness of the democratic backbone would be sensibly lessened. There is very little use, however, of discussing improbabilities. The democrats meet on the 20th of this month to nominate candidates for governor and other state officers, and they will act with full knowledge of their responsibility as the central, if not controlling, factor of the national problem.

In November elections will be held in Maryland, Minnesota, Mississippi, New Jersey, Massachusetts, Connecticut, New York, Pennsylvania and Virginia. A good many of these elections will be stoutly contested by the republicans, if Ohio goes republican. They will endeavor to carry New York. This state does not elect a governor, but it elects five state officers headed by a secretary of state; it also elects a number of judges and an entire legislature, the upper house of which will participate in the election of Senator Lapham's successor. If the republicans do not carry Ohio, they will have little heart for a more difficult contest in New York. If they should carry Ohio, it is scarcely probable that they can carry New York. They are still torn by faction, and the overwhelming defeat last fall has taken much of the old spirit out of them.

So, too, if Ohio—a very big "if," by the way—should infuse new life in the g. o. p., efforts would be made, based on patronage and assessments of various kinds, to win back Connecticut, which elects a house and half of a senate; Massachusetts, which elects a legislature, a governor and other state officers, and Pennsylvania, which elects a state treasurer only. They may, too, try to carry New Jersey, which elects a governor, a house, one-third of a senate; Virginia, which elects a legislature, and Maryland which elects a legislature and a governor. There is, however, very little probability that they can carry New Jersey, Virginia or Marland, even if they should succeed in Ohio. Nor is it probable they can take either New York or Connecticut out of the democratic column. A great deal, however, is dependent upon the Ohio result; but after all Ohio cannot bring certain defeat upon the democratic party. It can determine whether the democrats are to have in 1884 an easy victory or a hard struggle; but it can crush all the hopes and plans of the republicans, and the indications are that it is preparing to accomplish the task for the general good.

Editor Dana, of the New York Sun, joins The Constitution in protesting against the foolish habit of nominating democratic candidates in advance of the action of the national convention. The truth is, in matters of pith and moment, Editor Dana generally agrees with The Constitution.

Editor Watterson is in a frame of mind to believe that Mr. Tilden has a good deal of health connected with his possessions. Does anybody suppose that Mr. Tilden will allow all this genial robustness to run to waste by declining to be a candidate?

John R. Miner, one of the star routers, has obtained seventeen mail contracts from the government since he was indicted. This shows the progress which civil service reform has made under a republican administration.

Under Mr. Arthur's gifted administration, edited as it is by Mr. Frank Hatton, one of the greatest of contemporary statesmen, a new star route ring has grown up. It carries on its operations right under the presidential eye.

One of the more sensitive of the martyrs on the star-route jury is said to be troubled with the jim jams. The judge somewhat maliciously attributes it to liquor, but it is undoubtedly the result of the harangues of the lawyers.

Deacon Richard Smith, of Cincinnati, is growing into activity as a politician. He made a beautiful oration in front of Foraker's vine-embowered cottage in the suburbs of his town the other night. No beer.

Editor Padman, of the Louisville Courier-Journal, is to have charge of the pie department in the great exposition. He will be glad to receive communications upon this and cognate subjects.

The star-route thieves may be found guilty and punished, but their punishment cannot possibly be as great as that of the jury which has been compelled to listen to the salary grabbing lawyers.

Mr. Blaine declares that he has now permanently adopted the profession of historian. Mr. Blaine is right. The historian has a tremendous advantage over the contemporary politician.

kicked and cuffed three times a week by the leading member of his own interesting family.

In the face—nay, in the very teeth, as it were—of well known facts, Deacon Richard Smith declares that he is not infallible. Such modesty as this is its own exceeding great recompense.

It would be a great republican victory if the next republican convention could be prevailed upon to vindicate Guiteau's choice for president.

Judge Folger's failure to control the Sherman ring in the treasury has resulted in a very severe strain upon his mental equipment.

When the Philadelphia Press says that Butlerism is declining, does it mean that nigger-skinning is becoming popular in assachusetts?

Washington society shows up well in its juries.

POLITICAL NOTES.

Alaska is the only part of the country where there is no presidential aspirant.

Twelve judges of the New York supreme court will be chosen next fall in addition to the 34 now on that bench.

Lord Landsdowne, Canada's new governor-general, has 95,000 acres of land in Kerry, rented at an average of half a dollar an acre.

Secretary Teller expresses his intention of expending all the money he can legally in purchasing stock cattle for the Indians.

Hoadley's nomination for governor of Ohio is "as good as secured," remarks the Columbus correspondent of the Cincinnati Commercial Gazette.

The three leading colored Mississippians, ex-Senator B. K. Bruce, ex-Representative John R. Lynch and Ham Carter, are opposed to General Chalmers.

The Illinois legislature is trying to fix the rates of berths in sleeping cars, and the house has passed a bill making the maximum price of a lower berth $1.50, upper berths $1 and state rooms $3.

The civil servant under the crown longest in harness in England is Earl Granville. He has held office even longer than Mr. Gladstone, his present chief, whose record is so long and varied.

Michigan is to have minority representation in corporations. There was some informality in proceedings upon the bill providing for it, but it was declared passed and has gone to the governor.

Judge Hoadley, the leading man in the contest for the democratic nomination for governor of Ohio, and Judge Foraker, the republican candidate, both live at Walnut Hills, Cincinnati, and in the same voting precinct.

Some of the Ohio democrats think they ought to nominate soldier candidates this year as an offset to Foraker. They set up two in 1879 with only three legs between them and they were badly defeated by a calico merchant, supplemented by a person of the name of Poolenhicker or thereabouts.

Judge Kinne of Tama county, the nominee for governor on the Iowa democratic ticket, is comparatively a young man, but one of sterling qualities. He was a former resident of Illinois. He is a gentleman of most excellent judgment, good constitution and sound democracy. This is his second race for the governorship.

The Massachusetts senate bill abolishing the payment of the poll tax as a prerequisite of suffrage was killed by the house Eight republicans voted in favor of, and one democrat against, the bill; otherwise it was a party vote. A bill was admitted to the house to make the salary of members $750, an increase of 50 per cent.

The queen's navee, when all vessels on the stocks are finished, will comprise 36 first and second class ships, with armor averaging 13 inches in thickness, and guns of the average weight of 35 tons. France has the same number of ships, but the armor is 14½ inches thick, the guns average 40 tons, and half of them are breech-loading.

The New York Tribune serves this notice on the democracy: "Y[illegible] may not nominate the old ticket in 1884, but [illegible]e dead certain to have the old luck." If that is the case the democrats will elect the president and the republicans will count him out—is that what the Tribune means? Thieves generally keep whist till the thing's done.—Springfield Republican.

Mr. Blaine, in a private letter, speaking of the liquor question in his state, says: "Intemperance has steadily decreased in the state since the enactment of the prohibitory law, until now it can be said with truth there is no people of the Anglo-Saxon world among whom so small an amount of intoxicating liquor is consumed as among the 650,000 inhabitants of Maine."

The president has appointed the best man for minister to Sweden and Norway, Hon. W. W. Thomas, Jr., of Portland. Mr. Thomas, though still young, is one of the most prominent politicians of the state. He enjoys the rare advantage of a knowledge of the language of the country to which he is going, and of the people as well, having previously served there as consul and also being the father of the Swedish colony in northern Maine. A picture of Mr. Thomas hangs on one side of the pulpit in the church at New Sweden to match the Ten Commandments on the other side.

A stern reformer is the prince of Montenegro. Some time ago he closed all the cafes and drinking shops in his dominion, regarding them as schools of effeminacy, extravagance and corruption. Then he abolished all titles, so that while formerly every other man in Montenegro was an "excellency," now even the ministers have to be content with plain "Mr." And now the prince has issued an interdict against all "luxurious wearing apparel," including cravats, gloves, walking-sticks, parsols and umbrellas. And no one dares complain, because the prince himself lives up to the strictest letter of the laws.

PERSONAL INTELLIGENCE.

The prince of Wales won $22,000 on the Derby.

Mr. Parnell's Chicago admirers have contributed $3,600 to the Parnell fund.

Patrick Egan, the Irish agitator, is in the west, studying the process of flour manufacturing.

The complimentary dinner by the bar to Mr. Benjamin Q. C., is fixed to take place on Saturday, June 30.

Walton, of New York, known as "the Plunger," is said to have lost $55,000 betting on English races this spring.

The earl of Bective has become a member of the Blue Ribbon army, and not only wears the badge, but is to sell off his choice stock of wines.

The grave of Charles Lee, first attorney of the United States, is located two miles from Warrenton, Verginia, and, as a matter of course, has been for nearly a century uncared for and neglected.

Prince Leopold is by far the most accomplished and highly educated of Queen Victoria's sons. He is an effective orator, and has made speeches which would have been highly creditable to any young man.

It is reported that Mr. Mackay, the millionaire, contemplates the erection in New York city of a gigantic hotel. It is to be eight times the size of the Fifth Avenue hotel, and is to contain almost everything under its roof.

Another resignation in the ranks of the Presbyterian ministers of New York, Rev. Dr. W. M Patton, who leaves the pastorate of the First Presbyterian church to take the chair of ecclesiastical, homiletical and pastoral theology in Princeton theological seminary.

The face of the newly crowned czar has none of that pathetic melancholy peculiar to his father. His expression is active, keen and somewhat severe. His manners are quick, decided and occasionally brusque. He is not quite so tall as other members of his family, being a little under six feet in height, but his frame is large, thick-set and muscular.

The sending of Prince Napoleon's son to Cheltenham college, England, is another evidence of the popularity of Britain among royal pretenders and refugees. Don Jamie, the son of Don Carlo, is at the Jesuit college near Windsor. The prince imperial left Woolwich for Cape Town. The son of King Theodore of Abyssinia was sent to Cheltenham college; the duke of Genoa entered Harrow, and Prince Hassan of Egypt and Prince Soocthai of Siam were recently at Oxford.

The Moscow papers are reported to be astonished at the grandeur of the American nobility money and jewels, outside of the imperial household, the bonanza man took the cake at the coronation. There was nothing in all the Russias that was too good for him, and whatever he wanted he got without asking the price beforehand. Even Monte Cristo never slung millions around so lavishly.

Mr. Blaine lives in truly grand style in his new mansion on Dupont circle. A lady who recently called there estimates that an income of $25,000 is necessary to keep up so large a house in such a magnificent manner. It is no secret in Washington that Mr. Blaine is a very wealthy man. He has not always been so favored. The last five years have worked great changes in the condition of his purse. Where did the ex-secretary make his money? In coal lands, principally I am told. He was fortunate in some investments of this character. His money was returned many fold, and to-day Mr. Blaine studies with interest the opening of railroads and development of coal lands in western Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

SOUTHERN INTELLIGENCE.

The Arkansas State insane asylum has 164 inmates.

Tea raising is the latest experiment in south Mississippi.

Average value of land in Bourbon county, Ky., about $45.50 per acre.

The official count shows 639 prisoners in the penitentiary at Nashville.

The honey crop in Clark county, Ky., this year will be the largest since 1870.

Arkansas has seventy different kinds of wood used in the mechanical arts.

The once very celebrated Cooper's Wells of Mississippi have recently been sold for $3,885.

A sixty-six pound cat fish was caught in the river near London, Tennessee, a few days ago.

Crops generally, all over Louisiana, are doing well. More corn planted than there was last year.

A lady of Vicksburg, Mississippi, has sued the city for $9,674.50 damages for rock taken off her property.

The Aberdeen, Miss., oil mills, with a capital of not less than $30,000, and to be operated by January 1st., are now a fixed fact.

According to the report of the director of the mint, the mines of North Carolina, produced last year $190,000 in gold, and $25,000 in silver.

At the graduating exercises of the Louisville female high school, on the 11th, forty-seven young ladies graduated. The flowers on the stage were supposed to have cost $1,200.

Bill Stillwell, of Lare county, Ky., one day last week, killed six red foxes, two ground hogs, three rabbits, and one rattlesnake, found two bee gum trees, and dug seven pounds of ginsing.

A contractor, who has been a resident of Greenville, South Carolina, all his life, said yesterday that more buildings were in progress, and in contemplation here this season than for twenty years past.

Colonel W. Johnston, is the largest owner of real estate in Charlotte, North Carolina, according to the estimate of the assessors, who value his property at $35,000. This is nearly double that of the next largest real estate owner.

LITERARY NOTES.

Report says that Robert Grant, author of "The Confessions of a Frivolous Girl," will be married July 3 to a daughter of Sir Alexander Galt.

Ninety thousand copies of the late John R. Green's "Short History of the English People" have been sold in England during the last eight years.

Hawthorne's life of Franklin Pierce is to be included in the new Riverside edition of his works. There is no good reason why this campaign job should be perpetuated as literature just because Hawthorne wrote it.

An odd book has just appeared in England. It contains diagrams of the palms and backs of the hands of twenty-two eminent persons, among whom are Mr. Gladstone, Charles Darwin, Wilkie Collins and the duke of Argyle.

The fifth and last volume of Victor Hugo's "La Legende des Siecles" has been published. No line in it is later in writing than 1874, it is said. The mighty old man has no new voice, but he still thunders with the old grandiosity.

The health of Tourgueneff is reported to be better, the return of warm weather having been a great boon to him. He is living at Bougival, near Versailles. The pains from which he suffers are of a rheumatic origin. He has not been free from them in over a year.

Edgar A. Poe's former home at Fordham, New York, was bought by Milton Strang, an heir of the estate, on Saturday for $5,700. The cottage is among old trees and by a road, the walls of which are moss-covered. There Poe wrote "The Bells," "Annabel Lee" and the like.

"A study of sea sickness," which is said to be an original and scientific explanation of the malady, will appear in the "open letters" of the July "Century." The writer, Dr George T. Stevens, will give simple directions for overcoming the causes of illness, or at least lessening their effect.

A life of Henry Irving, the actor, has been prepared by Mr. Austin Brenton, which will be elaborately illustrated by a series of 16 portraits showing him as Hamlet, Charles I., Shylock, Macbeth, and other of his best-known characters. The portraits are taken from the drawings of Whistler, Fred Barnand, Bromley, Edwin Long, and J. Forbes Robinson.

The large list of school text-books hitherto published by Messrs. Charles Scribner's Sons have been sold to Messrs. Ivison, Blakeman, Taylor & Co., the educational department of the Scribner house being abolished. Among the more notable books transferred are Guyot's geographies, Sheldon's readers, Felter's arithmetics and Professor Cooley's text books on philosophy and chemistry.

Bizet, whose "Carmen" is now so popular everywhere except in France, his native country, wrote an earlier work, "The Fair Maid of Perth," which a few weeks ago was produced in Vienna. Several numbers were warmly applauded, and the instrumentation was found charming; but on the whole, the opera is considered inferior to "Carmen," in which the composer's creative power had been stimulated by familiarity with Wagner's operas.

Captain Henri Riviere, the French officer recently killed in Tonquin, was a sort of French Captain Marryat. He was a good officer, but a better writer of stories, mostly of a fantastic character like "Snarleyow," and "The Phantom Ship." For twenty years past his writings have given much amusement to readers of La Revue des Deux Mondes. He made his literary reputation by a single lucky stroke, with a couple of little stories—"Pierrot" and "Cain." He was then, in 1860, a secretary at the ministry of Marine, and one of his superiors, seeing him very busy one day after office hours, asked him what he was writing. "A novel for La Revue des Deux Mondes." "That's right," returned the other, "such work is good practice for writing reports."

LOCHRANE'S INCONSISTENCY.

From the Chicago Times.

Mr. O. A. Lochrane, commonly called Judge Lochrane, is a garrulous and rather erratic Georgia politician, who, like the bum-boat woman that practiced baby farming, mixes democratic babies up so that their own mothers would not be able to discriminate among them. Mr. Lochrane was a "third-termer," and assumed to "echo the sentiment of the south" for Grant's candidacy. Either the sentiment of the south or the sentiment of Lochrane has undergone a change. "I echo the sentiment of the south," he says, "when I say that Tilden would be the most acceptable candidate." Tilden is the author of the phrase "a tariff for revenue only," and a free-trader of a very positive cast. "As for free trade," says Lochrane, "the south has never been in favor of any such theory." Wherefore, Tilden, the free-trader, would be the most acceptable candidate to "the south." Next to Tilden the strongest man "as a candidate for the south" would be McDonald—so Lochrane says. McDonald, though a less positive man than Tilden, is also understood to favor free commerce, which "the south," according to Lochrane, does not favor. Lochrane also assumes to echo the sentiment of Georgia when he says that "Georgia favors protection," and that Mr. Carlisle, the most outspoken and positive free-trader in congress, is the favorite of Georgia for speaker. Again, Lochrane echoes the sentiment of "the south," who is no friend of free trade, when he says that Mr. Dorsheimer, of New York, who is a pronounced friend of free trade, would be an acceptable candidate.

It would seem that the "sentiment of the south," which Lochrane echoes, is the kind of sentiment which blows hot and blows cold in the same breath, or the kind of sentiment which one might expect is pure, genuine, unadulterated democrat sentiment, such as democrat parties are made of. Even when the democrats mounted hard-money Tilden at the prow of their peculiar ship, they provided a counterbalance by mounting soft-money Hendricks at the poop. Four years later they reiterated Tilden's free trade "tariff for revenue only" formula, but kept the honors easy by taking for "standard bearer" a Pennsylvania protectionist, who pronounced the tariff to be "a mere local question."

The democrats are great sticklers for symmetry. One of them, having built him a new house, invited a friend to view and admire it. The symmetry was so carefully observed that even a bull's eye window at one side of the central part had its coparcener on the opposite side. Seeing a boy looking wistfully out of one bull's eye, the friend asked what the youngster was doing at that altitude. "Oh, I sent the youngscamp up there to punish him." "But there's another boy looking out the other bull's eye—what's he doing." "I make him go up there to preserve the symmetry!"

The symmetry of the democrat party would be sacrificed if the candidate and the platform should both aim at the same bull's eye. To preserve the symmetry it is necessary when the declared party purpose is free trade to choose a protectionist to execute it, or when one candidate is stationed at the protection bull's eye to station another one at the free trade bull's eye. As "the south" democrats are mostly protectionists, their sentiment is for Carlisle, Dorsheimer, Tilden or some other free trader to preserve the "time-honored" symmetry of the venerable double-ender. And this explains satisfactorily to all "true democrats" the seeming contradiction in Mr. Lochrane's "echo of the sentiment of the south."

"SOCIETY EDITOR IN?"

From the Chicago Tribune.

"Society editor in?"

A rather thin young man with very tight pants, high collar, and a round cloth cap the style worn by bycicle riders, had opened the door of the editorial rooms and propounded the above question.

"No," said the horse reporter, "the society editor isn't in. Did you want to see him?"

"Oh, awfully," was the reply. "Why, I wouldn't have missed seeing the society editor for anything. What I wanted to tell him about was very important—really and truly it was."

"Is Beatrice Perkins going to Mukwonago or the summer again?" asked the horse reporter; "because if it's anything about that, or 'South Side social circles are in a flutter over the approaching nuptials of a prominent belle and one of our best known young business men,' any of us can attend to it just as well as the society editor. Both these sentences are kept in type."

"No, it's nothing like that."

"Nothing about several well-known society young men on the North Side are about to organize a riding club is it? We've got all that ready, too, but we generally wait till about the middle of June before printing it. Then it means that some dry goods clerks are going to hire mustang ponies for one consecutive evening and spend the balance of the summer getting over it. I know all about North Side riding clubs."

"I never ride," said the young man.

"I wouldn't advise you to, unless you take along a postage stamp to make you sit quietly on the horse."

"What I want to know," said the young man, "is whether in walking with a lady a gentleman should always offer her his right arm or make it a rule to have the lady on the inside of the walk, no matter which arm she takes in accomplishing this result. We've had an awful argument about it over on Ashland avenue, and Cholly and I nearly had a real serious quarrel."

"Who is Cholly?"

"He's my room mate, you know. We've been awful friends ever since he lent me his mauve-colored pants two years ago. Last winter I gave him a lovely pair of dove-colored silk suspenders, and when my birthday comes he is going to give me a real sweet pair of silk stockings with my monogram on them. I wouldn't for anything in the world have any trouble to occur between Cholly and I, because we've been in the threads together for nearly a year."

"In the what?"

"In the threads—in the thread department, you know—and we think everything in the world of each other. I hardly ever buy a lemonade without asking Cholly to have some of it. But we're awfully puzzled about this matter I told you about. Cholly says the gentleman should always offer the lady his right arm, but I don't think so. I'm going to take a splendid young lady out for a boat ride in Union park next Wednesday evening, and that's how we come to talk about it."

"Well," said the horse reporter, "this what-shall-we-do-with-our-girls business is a pretty complicated matter. There are a good many things to be considered, and the best authorities have decided that no absolute rule in regard to what arm a lady shall take when walking with a gentleman can be laid down. It depends a good deal on the gait of the girl. I have seen some shy, demure please-do-not-say-piano-leg-when-I-am-around young creatures that would carry a man all over the sidewalk if you happened to walk them in front of a millinery store and had them hitched up on the off side; and then there are others that walk in a corn-on-my-little-toe style. They're daisies. They sort of drift down the street sideways, like a one-legged duck, and keep stepping on your ankles, and acting as if you were the first of a flight of stairs that they would like to climb but couldn't. A nice, square-gaited girl, that goes straight ahead, and doesn't lunge around, and make you think every minute that she's going to break her check rein the next dive will do well enough on either side, but with the hen-in-a-gale-of-wind kind it's better to keep them on the left side all the time, because you can fend 'em off more naturally."

"Then you think either way is allowable?" asked the young man.

"Certainly. When did you say you were going out with this girl?"

"Next Wednesday."

"Well, you'll have time enough before then to have your legs dipped over."

"Have what?"

"Have your legs dipped over. When people make candles, you know, and any of them are spoiled, they just put them in the mold and dip them over. I guess likely you can find some candle molds on the west side and improve your appearance considerably."

The Macon Military Campaign.

Indianapolis, Ind., June 13.—The Macon Volunteers, of Macon, Georgia, a military company organized in 1825, reached this city to-day on a tour of the cities of the northwest, and the ceremonies attendant upon the reception tendered them aroused a military enthusiasm not seen since the encampment. The Volunteers numbered thirty-five men in line, Captain W. W. Carnes commanding. There were also fourteen honorary members, including the Hon. Thos. Hardeman, congressman at large from Georgia, and the Hon. Felix Corput, mayor of Macon. The Volunteers are a soldiery looking body of men, with a neat gray uniform and white plumed helmets. The visitors were met at the depot by the committee of arrangements and by Adjutant General Carnahan, and escorted by a platoon of police and three local military companies, marched to the hall of the board of trade, where they were welcomed in speeches by the governor and mayor, to which the Hon. Thomas Hardeman said in response: "I would be doing violence to the southern nature did I not acknowledge the feeling of gratitude that your welcome has aroused. We come here as one people. While we come from Georgia, we come claiming the same rights as Americans that you claim. Themistocles once said that Lycurgus would not allow foreigners on Grecian territory. Such is not the feeling here. Here, in the presence of this people, I say to you that the same flag that you have we claim as our flag. In times gone by we marched only to the tune of 'Dixie,' but now, thank God, we march once more to the tune of 'Yankee Doodle.' The obligations imposed at Appomatox bind us as one. If ever the time comes you will find that the arms we bear have been furnished for the welfare of the whole people. We are no longer strangers, but your fellow-citizens."

The speech aroused the utmost enthusiasm. The afternoon was spent in informal sight-seeing, and at night a general reception at the board of trade hall was given, which included drills by the visiting and home companies. The attendance tested the capacity of the hall.

IN CHICAGO.

Chicago, June 13.—The Macon Volunteers reached Chicago yesterday two hours behind time, but went on to Rockford by special train at 12 noon. They were met by all the military and a large crowd at Rockford, paraded through the streets to the hotel for dinner and in the afternoon to the fair grounds, where addresses of welcome were made and responded to. At night the Rockford Rifles entertained their visitors at a banquet which was a complete success in every way. Our greeting was most hearty. The Rockford people turned out en masse to see us, and nothing that could add to the pleasure of our visit was left undone. We returned to Chicago to-day, where we were met by company G of the First regiment of this city. After stacking arms in the armory we were escorted to the Palmer house, where Major Harrison delivered an address of welcome, responded to by Colonel Thomas Hardeman. Our party has been invited to visit the railroad exposition and the board of trade to-morrow.

The Negroes of the G. O. P.

From the Boston Post.

A few years ago General Longstreet would have said that the colored men who voted the democratic ticket were bulldozed. They were not then any more than they are now. The fact is, the colored men, like most everybody else, are getting Tilden and a Budding Flower.

Washington Star New York Letter.

New York, June 8.—The Tilden boom increases every hour. It is now known as the "old ticket," and the nomination of the sage of Gramercy park is urged on grounds of justice and fair play. Mr. Tilden's age and feeble condition are the only drawbacks to his candidacy. If he were a little younger or in better health there is no doubt that he would be able to carry the country in 1884; but he resolutely declines to risk his life by entering another presidential contest. New York has been worked up into a boom for Tilden mainly through the influence of the western politicians, who insist upon the Tilden and Hendricks combination of seven years ago. Mayor Edson has already come out and expressed his hope that Tilden will accept the nomination. He says he voted for Tilden and Hendricks at the last election, and will vote and work for them again if they will enter the field. The mayor, by the way, says it is a great mistake to consider Tilden a feeble old man. He is only a little beyond seventy years, and is still a man of brilliant intellect, sound integrity, and capable of administering the affairs of the nation. His honor added that New York would be the pivotal state for the presidential election of 1884. And Mr. Tilden is the strongest man politically New York state could turn out in either party. But if Tilden does not want the presidency there is one man who certainly does. That man is Roswell P. Flower. He has the presidential fever in its most malignant form, and he can never be thoroughly cured of it until he is nominated and elected—or defeated. He is as active as a bee already in working for the nomination. One expression which is closely associated with his name is: "A radius of 75 miles around New York will control the next presidency. If I get that I am as good as elected." Flower started in on his boom by giving a dinner to Joseph Pulitzer and John A. Cockerill, of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch and the New York World. Pulitzer wanted all the honors, and would not allow Cockerill to attend. The result was a stupid dinner Pulitzer attempted to do the heavy, dignified and influential newspaper proprietor dodge, but he succeeded only in being stupid. Meanwhile Cockerill staid down town and got out the next day's issue of the World.

Mrs. Langtry's Stockings.

From the New York Star.

I was making some purchases Thursday afternoon at a Broadway store when my eyes fell upon the divine Lillie Laugtry at the hosiery counter. She was in search of a box of black hose, and in considerable doubt as to the proper size. "If you will permit me to hold the foot of the stocking to your closed hand I can judge if the size is right," suggested the dapper clerk. The Lily glanced at him searchingly to see if he was in earnest, and then, with all the coyness of a school girl, she drew her hand from a cocquettish little pocket in the side of her wrap, and extended it hesitatingly with a quiver in the fingers, let it drop suddenly at last into the clerk's outstretched palm. Her hand is certainly large, but is plump and pink and pretty, and the grace with which it was extended was worthy of Modjeska. You can't think of rose leaves while looking at the fair digit, but it will suggest pink sea shells and round balls of golden butter lying to cool in the clover that has grown up around the well curb. I was ungallant enough to glance on the box for the size of the hosiery, and the figures were "9½."

Conley to be Retained.

From the Correspondence Savannah News.

Washington, June 11.—I inquired of First Assistant Postmaster General Hatton to-day about the condition of things at the Atlanta postoffice. "Just the same," he said. "The defalcation occurred, we held Postmaster Conley accountable for it, and he made it good."

"When are you going to appoint a new postmaster?"

"Such a thing," Mr. Hatton replied, "has never been thought of. There is nothing against Conley. He did all we could expect him to do. He made good the defalcation that occurred. The law makes the postmaster responsible for his deputies, and when he complies with that law he certainly ought to satisfy the department. Conley is a good officer, and there is no intention whatever of superseding him." I told Mr. Hatton that some of the Georgia papers read differently from what he said. "I can't help that," was the reply.

Pictures of Ben Hill.

From the Rome Courier.

There will be three pictures of Hon. Benj. H. Hill presented to the legislative committee for its choice, to be placed in the state capitol. The competing artists are Miss Mary Franklin, of Athens, and Horace Bradley and J. H. Moser, of Atlanta. The legislature appropriated $1,000 to pay for the accepted picture. We hope that if all of them should prove to be faithful in likeness and well executed the state will take all three, paying $1,000 for the one preferred and $500 apiece for the other two. One in the state supreme court room and one in the federal court room would be mementoes of his great ability as a lawyer, and the one in the legislative hall would be a fit reminder of his distinction as a politician.

CAN THIS BE TRUE.

Atlanta, June 13.—Editors Constitution: I read your admirable article on Anniston with great interest. You omitted, however, the most wonderful thing about that remarkable town.

I refer to the church choir. Incredible as it may appear, this choir has been organized for several years and has never yet had a quarrel. All is harmony in essence as well as execution. Never once has the basso profundo said a cross-word to the soprano, or the tenor scowled at the alto. All is peace—can any other show a choir with such a record. Never! The Husband of a Choir Member.

A Harmless Pastime.

From the Pittsburg Dispatch.

The New York aristocracy have a very innocent and easy game in tracing back their ancestry to royal sources. All they have to do is to pick out the mediæval king or feudal magnate whom they chance to prefer, and any person of even limited imagination can get up a pedigree for them. No one will dispute the lineage, because it is not worth while. Indeed, as it affords them satisfaction, it is likely that the dudes could find no more harmless way of exhibiting their idiocy.

Speer's Promiscuousness.

From the Columbus Sun.

Hon. Emory Speer is one of the most promiscuous friends that Georgia republicans, whether white or black, have. He indorses the application of every fellow who wants an office, and the trouble at headquarters in Washington is not to get his indorsement, but to tell who he really favors for the offices applied for. Mr. Speer is for the upper side for himself, let the others go where they may.

Right Side Up.

From the Hartwell Sun.

The Constitution asserts that there never has been a day when the prospects of Atlanta were so bright, or her future so assured as right now. It administers a stinking rebuke to parties outside and inside of Atlanta who are trying to injure the city by misrepresentation.

Same Old Rates.

From the Philadelphia Press.

The price of an average farm will enable one to spend six or eight weeks at the seashore or the springs this summer, as usual.

A RAINY EVENING.

The twilight shadows darkling fall;
O memories dear! against thy thrall
My heart strives all in vain.
Yet wherefore strive against my mood?
I cannot silence, if I would,
The softly falling rain.

At such an hour, on such an eve,
Bright hopes, that yet I inly grieve,
Sprang up to fade and wane.
Ah, never more, hand clasped in hand,
Shall we within the doorway stand,
And watch the falling rain.

Yet still the sweetness of that hour
Returns, with all its wonted power
Of mingled joy and pain.
When, dropping down from window-eaves,
Or gently falling on the leaves,
I hear the summer rain.

O cruel Memory! thus to bring
That glad brief hour, with bitter sting,
Back to my heart again;
Those parting words of fond regret;
With glad pretext, love lingering yet,
Unmindful of the rain.

Ah, brief, indeed, poor aching heart,
The joy those fickle hopes impart;
Grief follows in their train.
Nay, nay, my heart; take upward wing.
O cruel Memory! thy sting
Shall vanish with the rain.

Though sadder seem the songs I trill;
Yet sorrow, with its plaintive thrill,
Adds sweetness to the strain;
As fragrant perfumes softly flow
From hawthorn blossoms bending low,

CINCINNATI COMMERCIAL GAZETTE: It is said that President Ingalls means to win the $250,000 subscription from Madison county, Ky., which is given on condition that trains shall run from Cincinnati to Richmond by July 1 next. There have been strikes and other delays, but M. E. means to have the work done on time if he has to send ten thousand men to the scene.

GENERAL LOGAN, president of the Richmond and Danville extension company, and Mr. A. L. Rives, vice-president of the Richmond and Danville railroad, went yesterday to Spartanburg, where they stopped to attend a meeting of the stockholders of the Spartanburg and Ashville railroad. They had just returned from a trip to Anniston over the Georgia Pacific, accompanied by President Johnston, General Manager Foreacre and Chief Engineer Temple. It was General Logan's first trip over the new road. It is in fine condition all the way, maintaining perfectly its reputation as a model railway in all its appointments.

Special to The Constitution.

DAWSON, June 13.—Our citizens are very much in earnest about getting the proposed extension of the B. and W. railroad from Albany to Columbus to pass through our town. An enthusiastic citizens' meeting was held to-day in the courthouse, and Messrs. W. C. Paschal, R. L. Melton and J. G. Parks were appointed as a committee on the subject.

The Southern Fast Freight Line.

From the Cincinnati Enquirer.

The Cincinnati Southern daily fast freight schedule has been reduced to 32½ hours between Atlanta and Cincinnati, which makes it the quickest route for the shipment of perishable freight. The first shipment of watermelons arrived yesterday on the new schedule. The first car of melons shipped to Chicago is enroute over the Southern.

The Anniston and Atlantic.

Special to The Constitution.

TALLADEGA, Ala., June 13.—The building of the Anniston and Atlantic railroad, which will open up the rich Talladega valley, is confidently believed in here. Messrs. Tyler & Noble have said it shall be built, and they never fail. This road will be a most valuable feeder to the Georgia Pacific, will open a new territory direct to Atlanta, and give 50,000 bales of cotton to you the first year it is built.

The Southern Telegraph.

From the Savannah News.

The lines of the Southern telegraph company are completed and working from New York to Richmond, Fredericksburg, Petersburg, Norfolk, Portsmouth, Lynchburg and Danville. Greensboro and Weldon will be opened in a few days.

Construction gangs have been placed at Greensboro, Charlotte, Columbia, Augusta and Charleston, at which points material has already been delivered to complete the lines to those cities. A foreman of construction is in Savannah, and will be ready in a few days, as soon as some additional material has been received, to commence the work at this point. It is expected that within sixty days Savannah will be in communication with New York and intermediate points over this new line.

The Southern telegraph company has a close working arrangement with the Baltimore and Ohio, the Bankers and Merchants, and the American Rapid telegraph companies, so that when this line is completed to Savannah it will be in communication with Boston, New York, Albany and other northern and western cities.

The company has arrangements also with the French and New York and London direct cables, by which it enjoys equal facilities for foreign telegraphy to those of any other American telegraph company.

The New Orleans and Northeastern.

From the Cincinnati Commercial.

Yesterday A. J. C. Robbins & Co., brought suit in the superior court against the New Orleans and Northeastern railroad company on a contract entered into January 14, 1882, whereby the plaintiffs agreed to complete all the grades and masonry required on thirteen sections on the northern division of the road. The suit is brought to recover $49,768.58 upon four different causes of action. The plaintiffs say that the work done under the contract amounted to $130,786 05, upon which there is due $34,570 83 with interest from February, 1883. A second count is for $3,000 damages, growing out of delays attending a failure to pay an installment of $10,566.63 until long after it was due. The third claim is $10,000 damages, resulting from similar delay in paying an installment of $13,750.51. The fourth item sued for is $2,297.75 for tools purchased by defendants of the plaintiffs.

Attachments were issued against the Merchants' National bank, Third National bank, Fourth National bank and H. H. Tatem and John Scott, for the seizure of the property belonging to the company, which it is claimed they have in their possession.

The Brunswick and Western.

From the Columbus Enquirer.

The announcement made by the Enquirer-Sun yesterday morning that Mr. C. R. Wise, chief engineer of the Brunswick and Western railroad, had reached the city for the purpose of making a survey, created quite a stir in business circles. Mr. Wise spent yesterday in looking over the city. Captain J. W. Woolfolk, president of the board of trade, took a drive with him in the afternoon and showed him the various points of interest and introduced him to several of our leading citizens. Captain Woolfolk is confident that the company needs business. Under their terms of purchase they are bound to extend the road sixty miles in this direction within eighteen months. The purchase was made in last September, and they have only about eight months left within which to comply with the terms.

The engineering corps arrived yesterday afternoon and is encamped about two miles southeast of the city. Mr. Morse, the general manager, is expected in the city this morning. When he arrives the survey will begin at once. The outlook, in our opinion, is very encouraging. The extension of this road to Columbus would be of great benefit to the city in many respects, and we hope to see the trains running from here to Albany as soon as the track can be laid.

The Rome and Carrollton.

From the Carrollton Times.

The second meeting was held in the courthouse on last Tuesday and was a great deal more largely attended than the first. Mayor Grow took the chair and the committee appointed at last meeting reported the discoveries and results of a visit recently made by them to Rome, Cedartown and Buchanan, where they conferred with various magnates as to the probability of constructing the road.

The conclusion of the committee is that if Carroll will give the right of way and furnish money enough to grade the road to the line of Haralson, and Haralson do as well, the road can and will be built at once. It is computed that $25,000 will grade the road to the Haralson line, and if our people do not desire to take stock, it is suggested by the committee that we invest in the bonds of the road, which would be a safe investment. The committee thought Haralson county would subscribe enough money to grade the road through her territory, and that the amount required could easily be obtained in Carroll.

The meeting adjourned to the first Tuesday in July. Being a narrow gauge road, with only about forty miles to grade, but little money comparatively will be required to build. There is plenty of money on the line, and if the people are wise enough to see their own interest the road will be built forthwith.

The Western North Carolina.

From the Charlotte Journal.

One of the most terrific rain storms that has ever been known to fall in this state, visited Salisbury and vicinity last Saturday night. So frightful was the downpour that many of the people are inclined to the belief that it was a genuine water spout. Be this as it may, it was no ordinary rain storm. Mingled with the roar of the torrents, came the roll of thunder and the crack of lightning, and the course of the turbulent streams, with mill houses and bridges tumbling and rolling down their swollen currents were lighted here and there by blazing barns. Little streams that in ordinary times could be stepped over by a child were quickly converted into rivers, and ruin was being worked on every hand. The storm appears to have extended for ten miles around Salisbury, and was severest up the line of the Western North Carolina railroad, where two overturned engines and a buried train, bore evidence of its disastrous results.

A party of Charlotte boys were on board one of the trains and arrived home Sunday afternoon to tell their experience. There were three trains on the road, all bound for Salisbury. The mixed local and freight train was in the lead, a gravel train followed this, and the regular passenger train brought up the rear. While the first train was going through a big cut, eight miles from Salisbury a tremendous rock broke loose from the top of the embankment and came down on the track followed by a slide of land, catching and holding the train fast. Finding it impossible to move either backward or forward, Engineer Boyd cut his engine loose, and with the conductor and fireman started on to Salisbury to telegraph back and warn the other two trains.

A track walker was sent ahead of the engine with a lantern, and the engineer was moving slowly. After proceeding about two miles, and while crossing a culvert, the engine began to sink and then suddenly went down into the water below, where it lay bottom up. Engineer Boyd, the fireman and the conductor leaped out at the first warning and escaped unhurt. In the meantime the gravel train was approaching the scene of the first wreck, under charge of Engineer Clark. Torpedoes had been planted on the track and warned by these, the engineer was driving along slowly, and just as he had arrived to within two miles of the "scotched" train, a culvert gave way under his engine and all went down in the surging torrent. The engineer and all hands escaped unhurt. Sometime afterward, Captain Tom Murphy's passenger train came up and stopped behind the gravel train. The rain was coming down in sheets and the scene was wild and frightful in the extreme. There were fifteen passengers on the local freight and ten on the regular passenger train. When daylight came our Charlotte boys got out of the car and took up a pilgrimage to Salisbury, passing the wrecks on their way, and arriving at their destination in time for a late breakfast. All along their tramp they saw evidences of the severity of the storm. In a level field the dirt had been torn up and the solid red clay exposed for a depth of four feet. All the lowlands were under sheets of shining, rippling water, and the country roads were hollowed out and washed into big gullies.

A construction train was at once sent to the scenes of trouble on the railroad, and yesterday morning the damages had been repaired and trains were running.

In Salisbury the rainfall was about 8 inches and at the depot the water stood four feet deep. Where one of the covered bridges spans the track, a landslide occurred bringing down the telegraph poles with it. The damage done in Rowan county is unprecedented. All the bridges leading to Salisbury are either swept away or damaged, and yesterday the town was cut off from the country mails and travel.

The Albemarle and Raleigh.

RALEIGH, N. C., June 9.—The Albemarle and Raleigh railroad is now completed from Williamston, in the county of Martin, to Tarboro, in the county of Edgecombe. This road was chartered in 1868 and special tax bonds were issued in aid of the road. The grading was begun and part of the iron was laid down, when the collapse of the state credit came, in 1869, and work was stopped. The charter became the property of L P. Bayne & Co., of New York City, and the road remained in a dormant condition until last year, when work was again begun. Bayne & Co., are now desirous of completing the road to Raleigh. A proposition for a subscription of $100,000 to the stock of the company by this (Wake) county was defeated on April 17. Propositions are now before the voters of Raleigh township to subscribe $50,000, and before those of the townships of St. Matthew, Mark's Creek, and Little River to subscribe $10,000 each. The election is to be held on June 23. A new registration of voters of the townships named is being made by the order of the county commissioners. It is expected that all those in favor of the subscription will register and vote, and it is believed that those opposed will be indifferent and not register. The pressure for subscriptions from the townships comes mainly from the merchants of Raleigh. These men say that the trade of Raleigh is ruined by the freight rates, which are now so much per mile, and that the wholesale and jobbing trade of Raleigh is destroyed by this arrangement of the railroads, which discriminates against Raleigh and in favor of the small towns. All this injury is due to the fight that Senator Vance made upon the Richmond and Danville company in 1881. These merchants were nearly all heelers and shouters for Vance in 1881. There are some who are not altogether sorry that these men, who have taken so much pains to gerrymander the state, cities and towns, and enact election laws calculated to prevent a free and fair vote, should now be afflicted with a deadly dose administered by their own chosen physician.

There is a strong opposition in many quarters to the granting of any subscription to the road. L. Bayne is the man who manipulated the special tax bonds and got them on Wall-street in 1868. During these transactions he became indebted to G. W. Swepson, of this city, in the sum of $20,000, and a suit has been brought to recover this, and the railroad franchise and all its fixtures have been attached to pay this debt. Those who oppose the subscriptions say it is very strange that a company proposing to build 70 miles of railroad that will cost at least $500,000, does not pay $20,000 if able to do so. It is well known that subscription cannot be carried without the aid of the colored vote. A number of democrats who have abused the republican party for 14 years because of the appropriation of state bonds in 1869 in aid of railroads are now seeking through the voters who own no property and pay no taxes to put in operation by voting for subscription the very same principle upon which the republicans were wrecked in the campaign and election of 1870. It is certain that subscription will carry in Little River and Mark's Creek townships. In St. Matthews and Raleigh townships the contest will be heated and close, and if subscription carries, it is asserted that there are good grounds upon which to have the election declared void, and also to enjoin the issue of the bonds. There is a branch of the Wilmington and Weldon railroad running from Rocky Mount to Tarboro, a distance of seventeen miles, which it is understood can be leased as a part of the line from Jamesville to Raleigh. It was thought that the Richmond and Danville people would oppose the subscription, as their line runs from here to Goldsboro, but Colonel A. B. Andrews, assistant president, who resides in this city, is of the opinion that the road to Raleigh would be a feeder to his line. The Albemarle and Raleigh road is really intended by its projectors as a rival and competitor of the Raleigh and Gaston and Seaboard and Roanoke railroads, which run from here to Portsmouth, Va. But how this can be when there is no connection by water at Jamesville to Norfolk, Baltimore and New York, by which another line would be established over the Albemarle and Raleigh railroad to the places named is exceedingly difficult to understand.

ATLANTA AND ROME.

Interview with Colonel E. R. Smith—A Good Spirited Article.

From the Rome Courier.

Early Saturday morning we concluded to saunter down to the foot of the Oostanaula and Elm streets, on the Oostanaula river, for the purpose of satisfying ourselves of the fitness of these localities for a new bridge. After making an examination and becoming satisfied that either location would be a splendid one, and as we were retracing our steps we espied Mr. E. R. Smith sitting on his platform at the Cherokee mills, reading the Courier. We went over to the mills, and congratulating Mr. Smith on his being an early riser, inquired what he found to interest him. "Well," he said, "I have just been reading this slur on Rome from the Chattanooga Democrat. Did you ever know the people of any town to berate and belittle another unless it was its real rival? All the cities in Georgia are prospering, but nearly all of them, Rome excepted, abuse Atlanta. They wouldn't do it if Atlanta was not their successful rival. Yet Atlanta goes right ahead, her realty and business advancing steadily and is now upon a firm and immovable basis. There is no occasion for Rome to abuse Chattanooga, for it is prosperous; and there is no occasion for Chattanooga to abuse Rome. But if spiteful or disaffected editor sees proper to do so the world will understand it, and he can't hurt Rome. Just here a gentleman came and said, '[illegible] I have given a [illegible] the refusal of [illegible] just go and tell him it is off the market; that $10,000 won't buy it. I have taken into business with me a number one partner who is a practical miller, and we will put a lot of machinery in the mill, including the latest improved machinery for the manufacture of new process flour. The machinery will cost about $2,000. It has already been ordered and we expect to be under full headway by the first of July next. I have just seen Judge Branham, and he has leased his half of the mill to us as long as we want it.' "Why," said Mr. Smith, turning to us as the gentleman retired, "I want you to get into my buggy and ride around and through the city and see what amount of building and improvements are now in progress. It will surprise you; there is more building going on now than there has been for several years. Property sells readily at fine prices. There never has been such a steady demand for real estate at any time since the war, at this season of the year, and this fall when the cotton crop comes in you may look for large advances in real estate. One ought not to sell good real estate in Rome unless his necessities require it. We will soon have free bridges and public schools, and, I am assured by those who know, that the railroad to Cedartown is now on such a basis that it will be completed in a very short time. This will connect us directly by two lines with the Alabama coal fields and give us our coal at two dollars per ton, and, besides this, it will result in a system of narrow gauge roads all around us. Now, when you have leisure, come around and I will drive you over and around the city. It is too much of a trip for you to think of walking, and you can see for yourself what an unprecedented amount of building is going on in every direction."

BUSINESS PROPERTY,

corner Decatur and Bell streets, known as the Kennedy property,

On Thursday, 14th June, at 4:30 O'Clock.

SMITH'S
EXTRACT OF MAY FLOWER,
The Cap Sheaf of the Chemist's Skill.
The Great Remedy for all Diseases of the Bladder and Kidneys.

This Remedy has stood the test of time, has been weighed in the scales of public opinion, and to-day has an army of men, women and children, who over their own signatures bear testimony to its curative properties. Some have been cured of Diabetes, some of Bright's Disease, some of Inflammation of the Bladder, some of Catarrh of the Bladder, some of Incontinence of the Urine, some of Leucorrhœa, or Whites, some of pains in the Back and Loins, some of diseases of the Prostate Gland.

For all Diseases arising from a diseased state of the Bladder and Kidneys, this Remedy stands without a rival.

Without a rival in the number of cures effected; without a rival in the purity of its composition; without a rival in number of bottles sold. The annual sale of Smith's Extract of May Flower exceeds the sales of all other Kidney Remedies combined.

DR. ELI IVES, says: "That in many aggravated cases, where Buchu had failed to produce any benefit, May Flower has effected a speedy cure."

DR. J. H. BIRD, says: "I have found May Flower to be a remedy for all Kidney complaints, far superior to Buchu or Juniper."

DR. H. F. MARTIN, says: "May Flower acts more promptly in all diseases of the Bladder and Kidneys than any remedy which has come under my notice."

DR. BENJ. H. LONG, says: "I have found May Flower exceedingly beneficial in my treatment of females."

DR. VINC. D. HUYVETTER, says: "Without doubt May Flower is destined to work a revolution in the treatment of diseases peculiar to the urinary organs."

DR. KING, in compiling his dispensatory, has paid a merited tribute to this remedy. See page 396 King's Dispensatory.

A number of authorities might be quoted, but there are none more eminent than the names above. In addition to these authorities, a living host of 60,000, whose certificates are on file in the office of the proprietors of this remedy, bear testimony to its virtues.

THROUGH THE CITY.

A GLIMPSE OF CURRENT EVENTS IN ATLANTA.

The Day's Doings in Public Offices—The Record of the Courts, the Railroads and the Hotels—Real Estate Operations—Gossip of All Kinds—Items of General Interest, Etc.

Several important sales of real estate will be made to-morrow.

Officer Mercer's seven year old daughter is exceedingly ill at his home on Fair street.

The policemen who have been detailed to do mounted service were out practicing horseback yesterday evening.

Messrs Hendrix & McBurney yesterday sold at private sale two unimproved lots to non-residents for $1,000 each.

Yesterday B. F. Brown was commissioned justice of the peace in the 72d district of Burke county, vice C. W. Allen resigned.

A new brass foundry is to be started on Peters street at an early date. Workmen will begin excavating for the buildings next week.

There is in Atlanta a walking stick that was cut from the historic apple tree at Appomattox. It is the property of Mr. W. H. Flynn.

The Rev. O. A Marshall of Gainesville, is conducting an exceedingly interesting and very successful revival at the Third Baptist church.

Old Limerick was the guest of the city again last night. He occupied cell No. 3, and made the entire night hideous with his prayers for vengeance.

Mr. Frank Haralson, who has just returned from north Georgia, says that crops in Union, Gilmer and Fannin counties are bad, but in Pickens county they are fine.

George Williams and Henry Stegall were given apartments in the calaboose yesterday, where they will remain until a cloud of suspicion which overhangs them shall pass away.

William Tolan was before Justice Tanner yesterday on a warrant charging him with assault and battery. For want of sufficient evidence the case was dismissed and Tolan set at liberty.

Lynn Clarke, a young white man, fell from the second-story window of his boardinghouse on Forsyth street near Garnett yesterday evening and dislocated his left shoulder.

Officer Brewning, yesterday brained a mad dog on Collins street. The brute created quite a panic in the neighborhood of Collins street and Forrest avenue before the policeman's club ended his existence.

Jake Devers, a negro man, was detected stealing old iron from the Western and Atlantic yard last night and was arrested by Officer Linam. Devers now occupies a cell in the calaboose upon the charge of larceny.

Colonel G. W. Adair yesterday sold three lots on Yonge street to Mr. Wallace. Upon one of the lots there was a large framed building, and the place was purchased by a gentleman from Covington for $1,500. The three lots brought a total of $2,700.

The excursion which was to have gone up to Rome by the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia road yesterday morning failed to leave on account of the rain, which was falling about the hour fixed for its departure. An effort will be made to make the trip Saturday.

Prince Varney, a negro man, was kicked by a cow yesterday evening and seriously hurt. He was milking when the cow suddenly kicked the darkey in the stomach, knocking him over. A deathly sickness ensued and Dr. Worth, who was called in, found his patient in a bad condition.

Night before last Mrs. Lester's residence, five miles from the city was entered by burglars. A handsome gold watch, a pair of sleeve buttons and a complete set of jewelry were stolen. The police have an accurate description of these articles, and are working for the reward offered by Mrs. Lester for their recovery.

Messrs. Ives & Krouse, the Peachtree street real estate men, made a public sale of fifty-four vacant lots on Marietta, Lambert, Strong and Kennedy streets yesterday afternoon. The sale began at four o'clock and continued until dark. There was a large crowd present and the bidding was lively. The lots were on average 40x100 and their sale evinced the fact that real estate is worth something in that locality. Many purchases were made by non residents and most of the lots were bought for building purposes. The lots averaged $125 each.

Day before yesterday Captain Couch saw a driver unloading a wagon in front of Mattie Gray's house, on Thompson street, into whose house he carried the truck. The affair appeared suspicious to the captain, and yesterday morning he visited the woman's house, and after a search he found two railroad lanterns, a two-bushel sack of wheat, a sack of bran and a sack of shorts. When the woman was questioned as to the person who left the goods with her, she refused to divulge his name, and her arrest upon the charge of receiving stolen goods was the result. After a sojourn of a couple of hours in the calaboose the woman's mind underwent a radical change and she gave the desired information to the officers and was released.

Last night at 9 o'clock at St. Luke's church Mr. E. R. Anderson, of Marietta, was married to Miss Alice Lemons, of Montgomery. Bishop Beckwith efficiated. The bride was "given away" by Mr. Robert Lemons, her uncle and guardian. A large number of friends witnessed the nuptials. Mr. Anderson is a son of Mr. D. S. Anderson, of Marietta and one of the leading young men of that city. The hook and ladder company of which he is a member, came down in honor of his wedding. The bride is a lovely young lady, who has many friends in Atlanta. After the ceremony the bridal party repaired to the Kimball house, where they had a reception until 11 o'clock, when they took the midnight train for Marietta. To-night they will be given an elegant reception at the house of Mr. D. S. Anderson. THE CONSTITUTION joins in the many congratulations.

CLOSING EXERCISES.

The Commencement at Clark University—An Interesting Occasion Yesterday and Last Night.

The commencement exercises of Clark university closed yesterday afternoon. Since the beginning of the exercises, last Sunday, they have been well attended, and as yesterday was commencement day proper, an unusually large company of visitors were in attendance. The programme was well carried out. The participants are doing credit to themselves and keeping up the good impression made by past examinations.

The exercises yesterday were opened with music, a march from Norma, followed by prayer. The following programme was carried out, during which the many visitors were well entertained: Oration, Mrs. Browning and Italy, Hattie W. Robinson; oration, The Soldier, John Leake; music, solo and quartette, Sweet Chiming Bells; oration, The Nineteeth Century, Sarah A. Harper; oration, St. Paul, H. M. White; music, male quartette, Where Jesus Is; oration, Influence of Poetry, Annie E. Arnold; music, solo, Tired. oration, Civilization, with valedictory address, Walter H. Nelson; music, duet and chorus, Danube River. Confering of degrees and awarding of diplomas and prizes, by Rev. E. O. Thayer. Music male quartette, Farewell. Benediction by Bishop H. M. Turner, D. D. While some did better than others, taking the exercises collectively, they were the most satisfactory that the university has ever had.

Last night the annual reception was given and was enjoyed by many. The handsome building and spacious lawn was beautifully illuminated and the halls of the university never before presented such a magnificent appearance. The building was crowded from pit to dome and not until a late hour did the crowd disperse. The institution deserves the kind and liberal feeling that is cherished toward it.

The faculty of the university has resolved to secure full studies and as perfect scholarship as possible, hence it has not in all the years of its existence graduated many in the collegiate department, but it has sent out many well instructed ministers and teachers, and in the end will gain by its strict examinations. It graduates this year, Walter H. Nelson, in the collegiate department, and John Leake in the academic department.

It enters on the new school year with bright prospects. A second large hall will soon tower up on the east side of McDonough, and equal in capacity to the one that now crowns the ridge on the west side of that street to be called the Gammond hall, founded by a gentleman of that name, who lives in Illinois.

Professor W. F. Hirkield, son-in-law of Bishop Gilbert Haven, has been elected to the chair of Theology—this will be an important addition to the faculty, which now consists of Rev. E. O. Thayer, A. M., president; H, H. Crogman, M. A.; J. W. Cardwell, B. A., and four lady teachers, aided by matrons, to which must be added a master mechanic, for skilled labor is part of the instruction given. The board of trustees has likewise been strengthened by addition of Rev. E. H. Gammond, the donor of $26,000 and Senator A. H. Colquitt.

THE DESERTED WOMAN.

George M. Hecker Neglects to Contribute to Her Support and Is Arrested.

George M. Hecker, the man who stopped at a Whitehall street boardinghouse about ten days ago with a woman purporting to be his wife, is again in trouble. When Hecker was released from the city prison after a two days confinement, he promised to give the woman who claimed to be his wife a support, but as soon as he breathed the air of freedom he forgot his promise and left her to shift for herself. The woman is in a delicate condition, and for the past week has been subsisting through the kindness of a colored family near Captain Brotherton's store. A day or two ago her pitable condition was brought to Captain Couch's attention, who at once began a search for Hecker, whom he found yesterday, and who was arrested by officers Steerman and Clark. Hecker was locked up on the charge of vagrancy, and as soon as the iron bars bound him in he began begging for freedom. Hecker sternly denies the truth of the woman's story that she is his lawful wife.

A BURIED BLADE.

The Result of a Desperate Fight at Toccoa—A Blade Taken Out of a Jaw.

In the early part of February last, a desperate fight, which came near proving fatal, occurred at Toccoa, in which E. Y. Davis, a postal clerk of the Atlanta postoffice, and a man named Ayers, of Franklin county, took part. In the fracas Ayers used a knife freely upon Davis, inflicting a number of wounds, the most dangerous one of which was in the left forehead, the blade entering and breaking off directly between the jaw bone and temple. Medical aid was at once summoned and the wound probed. Afterwards an operation was performed, but unsuccessfully, as the blade was not discovered. Since the affair, Mr. Davis has suffered very much, and has been so disabled that he had to give up work altogether. As time passed on, he grew worse, and as a last resort another operation had to be performed. This was done yesterday afternoon, Mr. Davis having been brought to Atlanta and placed under the care of his friends at Mrs. Purtell's on Forsyth street. About two o'clock Dr. Willis Westmoreland, visited him and after an examination administered either and proceeded with the operation, which required great skill and deliberation. He was successful, and took out the piece of the blade which was nearly an inch long. Last night Mr. Davis was resting quietly and with good fortune, will be able to go home in a few days.

THE POST-APPEAL.

The Management Evidently to Wait Till the Clouds Roll By, Jennie.

The Post-Appeal sleeps "uncommon sound." It was expected that its countenance would be visible on the streets to-day, but it is still in a comotose state. It is said that a battery is to be applied, however, at an early date, and that every effort will be made to bring the paper to life. This may be done as early as Sunday next or late as July 1, according to circumstances. The owners of the paper do not seem to realize that the prestige of the concern is waning, and that they are losing their grip by holding off. It may be that they intend to "wait till the clouds roll by." The able young men who slung the editorial and reportorial pencils on the Post under Colonel Thornton, to say nothing of the printers who wrestled with the manuscripts and "made sense" for the scribblers are tearing around in high dudgeon. One young man threatened yesterday to telegraph for Colonel Thornton's arrest in Chicago, but after charging around for a while, consulting a lawyer, etc., he seemed to cool down and be content to wait for a period at least. Colonel Withers, formerly editor of the Post-Appeal, will seek a new field of labor. The foreman will hie away to other climes, and the other members of the establishment will seek business in other quarters. Mr. John Conley, representing the owner, tacks a card on the door stating that pending the reorganization of the editorial force, and making arrangements to put the paper properly before the public, the doors will be closed, and that persons having any right to inquire into the affairs of the Post-Appeal will apply to Conley & Shumate, attorneys for the owner.

The plan is to issue the paper as soon as possible with a splendid corps of managers and editors none of whom can be located yet. But four days of idleness has scattered the old crowd.

THE GAME OF CHESS.

Mr. Orchard Beaten, and Wurm Standing In Only Two Games of Success.

There was a large crowd present when the fifth game in the Orchard-Wurm match was played yesterday morning. Mr. Orchard, having the attack, essayed the "Ruy Lopez Knight's Opening," and obtained a favorable position early in the game. He did not maintain his stand, however, and his wary adversary compelled him to resign on the 40th move. The game lasted nearly two and a half hours.

In the afternoon, both players were in good trim and one of the finest games of the series was played. The Atlanta champion won in handsome style. The result is now a foregone conclusion, should Wurm win two more games the victory will be his. Those who are familiar with Mr. Orchard's powers are much surprised at the poor stand he has made. He has never been beaten a majority of games by any southern player and a few years ago in a series of matches with his present opponent he came off an easy winner. Mr. Orchard claims that he is not in good practice and expressed the opinion that he will do much better if another match should be played. During the past two years he has had no opportunities of practicing with strong players and his game has detenoated. On the other hand Wurm has had every opportunity to develop his powers by practice with the leading players of the New Orleans Chess club, and is now in perfect trim. He is thoroughly conversant with every known opening and plays end-games with deadly accuracy. Mr. Orchard, who is known to be a dashing, brilliant and attacking player, has been kept on the defensive in every game. When asked last evening why he did not play in his bold attacking style, he naively replied: "Because Wurm won't let me." Notwithstanding the commanding lead of his opponent, Mr. Orchard has not lost heart and has faith in his ability to pull in ahead in the home stretch. An extraordinary amount of interest is manifested in the contest. Among those who watched the game yesterday were Dr. Beck, of Detroit, Michigan, and Mr. Goldsboro, of the New Orleans club.

The match will be resumed this morning at ten o'clock and there will be a sitting at five in the afternoon.

ALFRED SHORTER'S WILL

THE CASE IN COURT YESTERDAY BEFORE JUDGE STEWART.

Sketch of a Remarkable Man Who Amassed a Great Fortune—His Munificent Gifts to Shorter College—How He Left His Estate and the Grounds For Contesting the Will.

The greatest will contest in the history of the Georgia courts was that three years ago over the celebrated Telfair will. Mary Telfair died in Savannah, leaving a fortune of between $600,000 and $700,000, nearly all of which was bequeathed to charitable and religious objects. The relatives tried to break the will, and the case, after a hard contest, was decided in favor of the will. The final opinion in the supreme court was rendered by Judge George Hillyer, then of the Atlanta circuit, who sat "pro hoc vice" on the supreme bench in that case.

Next to the Telfair case in the amount of money involved and the interest aroused stands the Shorter will case now in the courts. A motion for a new trial in this case is now pending before Judge Stewart in Fulton superior court. The case belongs in the Floyd superior court. Judge Stewart presided at its trial at the March term, and by consent of all parties the motion for a new trial was brought before him here. The history of the case is interesting and involves to a considerable degree the history of one of the remarkable men of Georgia. Alfred Shorter was born in Wilkes county in 1803. When about six years old his mother died and he went to live with his grandfather, remaining with him until he reached manhood. His father married again, and had several children by the second marriage. When Alfred Shorter began life for himself he went to Monticello, where he was employed by a Mr. Baldwin, one of the leading merchants of that place. He gained the confidence of his employer and was taken into partnership. The firm prospered, and in its profits was laid the foundation of what afterwards became the princely Shorter fortune. At length Baldwin died. The business was continued by Shorter as surviving partner, the widow retaining her husband's interest. Finally Shorter married Mrs. Baldwin. They had no children. Two sisters of Mrs. Shorter lived near her. They were Mrs. Harper and Mrs. Cooley, both of whom were blessed with offspring. The families were quite intimate and Mr. Shorter saw a great deal of his wife's neices and nephews. About thirty-five years ago Mr. Harper, Mr. Shorter's brother-in-law, moved to the neighborhood of Rome. Soon afterwards Mr. Cooley followed and settled near him. It was not long before Mr. Shorter went to Floyd county also and settled at Cave Springs. His keen business sense applied itself at once to the opportunities around him. He invested largely in real estate and mines, and was one of the projectors of the Rome railroad, and also largely engaged in banking.

Cooley and Harper died years ago and Shorter administered on both their estates. Their children lived near him and for a great many years some of the Harper children were in his household as part of his family. Mr. Shorter rapidly grew from a prosperous into a wealthy man. His every enterprise seemed to succeed and his remarkable capacity for business bore abundant fruit. Seven or eight years ago his wife died and about the same time he founded Shorter college which now stands a noble monument to his memory. His first gift was $20,000 but he furnished the institution with all its buildings and appliances, which cost besides this donation about $135,000. In the will $40,000 more was given to the school, which rounded off the magnificent sum of $200,000, donated by this man for the education of the women of Georgia.

Last July he died, in his eightieth year. It was discovered that he had left a will in his own handwriting, and that the bulk of his property had been left to the Cooley and Harper children, the residence going to the Beeland childred, offspring of a sister of the deceased, and to Shorter college.

When the will was offered for probate, it was caveated by the children of the half brothers and sisters of Mr. Shorter. The ordinary of Floyd county probated the will over the caveat. An appeal was taken to the superior court. The case was called at the March term and occupied eleven days in its hearing. The jury sustained the will. Counsel for the caveators moved for a new trial. This motion was called before Judge Stewart yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The opening argument for the caveators was made by Colonel Henry R. Shorter. He was followed by Colonel C. N. Featherstone for the legatees. At the conclusion of his remarks the court took a recess until 9 o'clock to-day when the argument will be continued. It is probable that Judge George Hillyer and Colonel T. W. Alexander will speak to-day for the legatees and Judge Harvey for the caveators. The argument will be concluded today. In the event of the refusal to grant a new trial an appeal will be taken to the supreme court and the case will probably be contested to the last with the same vigor hitherto manifested on both sides. The estate in question was appraised at something over half a million dollars, though common report places the amount as high as three quarters of a million. It is impossible to ascertain the exact value of the estate, because a large part of it is in property the value of which is undetermined.

THE WILL

makes numerous bequests. They are as follows: To Martha H. Brooks, wife of Walker J. Brooks, one store and lot in Rome, 70 shares Rome railroad stock, five $1,000 income bonds of the Western and Atlantic railroad, $1,800 Rome bonds, and $4,200 in money.

To Georgia E. Hillyer, wife of Eben Hillyer, 70 shares Rome railroad stock, $2,000; Rome bonds, $1,000; Georgia railroad bond, $500; Floyd county bond and $10,000 in money.

To Ellen E. Hillyer, wife of Judge George Hillyer, 70 shares Rome railroad stock, $2,000; Rome bonds and $16,000 in money.

To Mary Rhodes, wife of Henry Rhodes, one store and lot in Rome, 70 shares Rome railroad stock and $9,000 Rome bonds.

To Alfred S. Hamilton, half interest in store house.

To Daniel Blount Hamilton, Charles Harper Hamilton, Alexander T. Hamilton, Joseph J. Hamilton, each $5,000 in money.

To Elizabeth H. Wright and Alexander T. Harper, $7,000 in money each.

To Park Harper, Armstead Harper, each $2,500 in money.

To Charles M. Harper, store house and lot, Rome hotel, farm in Gordon county of 1,000 acres and half interest in stock, etc., on it.

To Milton A. Cooley, store house and lot.

To trustees of Shorter college, $23,000 Rome bonds, 100 shares Rome railroad stock, making the nominal sum of $40,000.

To the heirs of Sarah S. Beeland, $40,000.

To John E. Stillwell, $1,500.

To W. W. Brooks, $1,000.

To C. M. Pennington, the use and loan of $20,000 so long as he may need it to run the Ætna furnace.

To Martha Hamilton, wife of David B. Hamilton, the net residium of the estate.

David B. Hamilton, Judge George Hillyer and Eben Hillyer are named as executors. The will bears date of July 18, 1881, and is witnessed by W. F. Ayer, J. C. McDonald and J. B. Hine.

To the will is attached a codicil which gives to Eben Hillyer, in trust for the widow and children of Milton A. Cooley, storehouse and lot and $3,000 in Rome waterworks' bonds and $300 in Rome city bonds.

To the trustees of Shorter college $5,000 additional for immediate use.

To Mrs. Sallie Ansley $5,000 and $1,000 to complete education of her daughter.

It may be generally stated that the Cooley children received about $100,000, the Harper children, except Mrs. Hamilton, about $60,000, the Beeland heirs $40,000, Shorter college, $45,000, and Mrs. Hamilton the residue, which amounts to between $100,000 and $150,000. The caveators are T. B. Burge, James Truitt, Nathan Truitt, Mrs. Priddy and the heirs of Henry A. Shorter in Arkansas. Some contest was made by the Beeland children, because of an alleged charge of their bequest from $75,000 to $40,000.

The grounds of contest are that Mr. Shorter was unduly influenced in making his will by Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton and also that in writing and putting the will together some of the pages were so misnumbered as to make the document invalid. The case will be watched with intense interest to its final adjudication, and then pass into the legal records to swell the already great volume of authority on contested wills.

A BAD BUG.

Mr. Will Richardson Discovers a West Indies Tarantula in a Bunch of Bananas.

One of the most unwelcomed and horrid visitors that has reached the city, arrived yesterday, and is now the guest of Ballard Bros, on Marietta street. It is a West Indies tarantula. This frightful looking and poisonous insect was found at the passenger depot yesterday by Mr. Will Richardson, while unpacking a box of bananas. It was snugly crouched between the rows of this luscious fruit and was discovered just in time to prevent probably, a poisonous sting. A candy jar was procured and the unwelcome guest was caught therein and placed on exhibition at the store of Ballard Bros. The discovery and capture of the insect, which is a curiosity and a stranger to many of Atlanta's citizens, created quite a stir at the depot, the result being that many took a look at the stranger during the afternoon. A gentleman who has seen many, says this is the largest he ever saw. Its body is something over two inches long, while from the end of its fore and hind legs it covers a space of about nine inches. With its prickly body, muscular looking hairy legs, protruding fangs and keen eyes, it presents an ugly picture, and is enough to make any one shudder when close to it. A single eyeball glares like a headlight from the center of its forehead.

ATLANTA UNIVERSITY.

The Closing Exercises a Grand Success—The Exercises To-day at Friendship Baptist Church.

Messrs. Johnson, Cleveland and Ryals, of the state board of visitors, were present again yesterday at the examinations of the Atlanta university, and assisted in conducting them.

Guisot's History of Civilization has been taught by President Ware, and the students seem to have learned to take a comprehensive view of the political questions involved in the study of this science. Each member of the class in botany, taught by Mr. Sinnot, took a plant that they had never analyzed and grouped around the analysis of it a large amount of information upon the subject of botany. Professor Bumstead's class in De Amicitea translated with great fluency and accuracy and showed a fine appreciation of the sentiments of Cicero, the philosopher. The class in Demosthenes under Professor Chase grasped the thoughts of the author and expressed them in terse and eloquent English. The beginners in Latin taught as usual by Miss Ware, have received the "natural method" of instruction to some extent, and have acquired a vast amount of knowledge of Latin in one year. Miss Neil, the [illegible] of the institution, had a class in reading with all the modern improvement. Such instruction for all the children in Georgia would be worth millions. In arithmetic Miss Marsh compels her pupils to think, and allows no error or blunder to pass uncorrected. Mrs. Vache, who has taught elementary science the past year, had a class in the lowest grade in botany. Their facility in originating clear, concise and correct statements is, under the circumstances, almost miraculous. Miss Loomis conducted the examination in United States history, and plainly showed that she has no patience with mere parrot work. Miss Massey, a colored graduate of Oberlin, has given instruction in music by the Tonic Solfa system, and the results secured argue favorably for the merits of the system. At the close of the examinations members of the examining committee expressed their gratification at what they had seen in well considered but emphatic terms. After the literary exercises the visitors and other guests repaired to the cottage to test by sight and taste the cooking of senior normal girls. Great succcess was evident in this highly commendable feature of instruction happily inaugurated by the trustees of Atlanta university. It is hoped that they may obtain funds for the larger cottage they desire. The competitive gardens were then inspected and found to be perfectly kept and highly tilled. It is perhaps somewhat singular and surprising that Philip Page, a native African, raised the greatest number of pounds of Irish potatoes upon his square rod of ground, viz: 83½ pounds which is 222 bushels to an acre. Mr. Sessions. the superintendent of the industrial department, certainly knows how to make things look green. The barn was then visited, a description of which has been given in a late issue of THE CONSTITUTION, and is well worth seeing.

The quality of hay, the appearance of the pigs, the structure of the cattle stalls and the ventilation of the barn received favorable comment. In the agricultural exhibit were samples of various kinds of cereals, grasses and forage crops, and vegetables from the thirty-six competitive gardens.

The most of the silk worms have imprisoned themselves within their cocoons, spun in egg crates, paper bags, upon bushes, and in many nooks and corners of the room. In almost any family where mulberry or osage orange leaves can be obtained, the women and children can raise from fifty to a hundred dollars worth of eggs and silk without interfering with their ordinary duties. The committee received the twenty plats of grasses and found that clovers, orchard grass, meadow, fescue and sweet vernal had stood the test of climate and soil perfectly. The trustees of the school wish to extend the industrial work of different kinds, and we hope they will be able to secure the necessary funds, for this kind of training is one the great needs of the south, and in fact of the whole country. The exterior of Stone Hall reflects great credit upon its architect, Mr. Norrman, and the style and kind of inside finish is a marvel of simplicity and beauty.

The commencement exercises of the institution will take place to-day, in the Friendship Baptist church, in Mitchell street, commencing at ten o'clock a. m.

A VALUABLE INVENTION.

A Chance for Another New Enterprise for Atlanta—A Wheel Factory Proposed.

Yesterday a CONSTITUTION man met a gentleman at the Markham house who carried in his hand what seemed to be a reduced model of an ordinary wagon, carriage or buggy wheel.

The gentleman told an interesting story. He said: "My father was a mechanic and wheelwright by trade, and, though I say it myself, a good one. A few years ago while engaged one day repairing an ordinary wheel, such as are now in use, he was seized with a conviction that there could be an improvement upon wheels, which had been thought to have reached perfection. He set to work upon it and succeeded. The model that I hold in my hand is the result of his work, and is a wheel which the very best experts declare must sooner or later supplant every wheel upon every vehicle in this country and wherever else it may be introduced."

Taking a small wrench from his pocket he unscrewed four little taps from as many small bolts which ran transversely through the flanges of the hub and said, "See here!" At the same time he removed the entire back of the hub, leaving the mortice of every spoke exposed to view."

"Well, what of it?"

"You see," the gentleman went on, "the improvement consists first in this. If you break one spoke in your buggy wheel as now constructed, the blacksmith must first remove the tire, and then the wheelwright must tear up the whole wheel to get out one spoke. With this wheel neither tire or rim is removed. You simply take off one half the hub, draw your broken spoke out thus (suiting the action to the word) and put another in thus, close up your wheel and the work is done, without upsetting the rim of the wheel, or taking off and reshrinking your tire, thus saving labor, time, annoyance and money. The second improvement is in the box." Here he drew forth the part of the hub in which the spindle of the axle runs. "You see this box is eight square, so it cannot go wrong, and is larger at the point where the hub comes apart than it is at either end, so that when once placed in position and the hub locked together it holds the wheel precisely concentric upon its axle. Any wheelwright will tell you how difficult it is to box a wheel so it will run true, and many machines have been invented for that purpose alone. The hub is made of malable cast iron, the box of the same material as wheel boxes are now made of, and outside of this and the hub the wheel is the same as any other."

"Have you a patent on it?"

"Yes, indeed. My father patented it before his death which occurred recently."

"What do you propose to do with the wheel?"

"I desire to organize here in Atlanta, a stock company for its manufacture upon the same plan of the Royer Wheel company of Cincinnati was organized to manufacture the Sarven wheel. It made its incorporators all wealthy, and though as I have said, the patent expired years ago, the company still does an immense and profitable business. Atlanta has every facility for this business, geographical position, fuel, as fine timber in reach as there is in the world, and with a small capital a beginning can be made which there is little reason to doubt may grow into one of the greatest and most profitable industries in the south. I am not offering the patent for sale."

LOCAL TRADE AND INDUSTRIAL NOTES.

The ground will be broken Monday for a large factory for the making of Swift's specific.

It is now assured that Atlanta will get her 150,000 bales of cotton this year. Next year we must have 200,000 bales.

Messrs. Oglesby & Meador shipped 72,016 packages of Macaboy snuff on May 9th, an unprecedented one day's shipment for a southern house. This house also sold 100 boxes of soap to Anniston on one order, thus opening a growing trade between that city and Atlanta.

The Globe Cotton Planter company has just received 500 "flasks," or patterns, with which they will begin at once the manufacture of improved hollow ware, and we shall soon have Atlanta-made pots, ovens and kettles. They use No. 1 Woodstock iron, which is the best.

JEFFERSON CITY, MO.—Dr. I. C. Riddler says: "Persons who use Brown's Iron Bitters always speak well of it. It is a good medicine."

Georgia Inventions.

W. J. Goodwyn, of Culloden, Ga., was in to see us yesterday. He has models of his own invention of a plow, cotton chopper, wheat sower, and also a car coupler. We have examined these models, and believe there is merit in them. Mr Goodwyn is not financially able to patent his inventions. He wants to sell to some party who is able, and will be in the city to-day. Any one wishing to communicate with him can do so at this office.

Society News.

News relating to marriages, parties, balls, club meetings, musicales, personals, departures from the city to resorts, etc., respectfully solicited for Sunday's issue of THE CONSTITUTION. All such matter must be handed in or sent to "society editor," with responsible name, by 1 o'clock p.m., Friday.

The Telegraphers.

It was not intended from the local that appeared in Tuesday's issue, for it to be inferred that the telegraphers' reception and ball, June 21st, is to be a public affair, as such is not the case. Persons desirous of attending will have to be vouched for by one of the committeemen before cards of admission can be obtained. Novel features will be introduced, and judging from the extensive preparations that are being made, we believe it will be a very pleasant affair. Only a limited number of tickets will be issued to outsiders.

State of Georgia, Fulton County—To the Superior Court of said county:

THE PETITION OF JESSE W. RANKIN, PRYOR L. MYNATT, Frank E. Bleck, John A. Barry and John C. Kirkpatrick respectfully shows that the Central Presbyterian church has been established in said county for many years past, worshipping under the Presbyterian form of worship, and does now continue so to worship and conduct services, and is known by the name of the Central Presbyterian church of Atlanta. Said church is composed of a large number of members, amounting to perhaps more than four hundred of male and female, and they desire to be incorporated with authority to enforce good order, receive donations, make purchases and affect alienations of reality or personality by deed or mortgage, not for purposes of trade and profit, but for promoting the general design of the Christian religion and to look after the general interests of the church in the use of the methods generally applied in the Presbyterian denomination. Petitioners pray that they and their associates and successors composing what is called the Central Presbyterian church of Atlanta, may be incorporated by an order of this honorable court for the term of twenty years with the right of succession as provided by law and with the powers above mentioned. Petitioners, pray for such an order as this honorable court may deem proper according to law for the purpose of carrying this petition into effect.

Factory, Store and Warehouse Property, Best and Last on the Market!
Tuesday, June 19, 5 P. M.

THESE LOTS ARE SITUATED IMMEDIATELY on Marietta street, and the three main lines of roads, the Western and Atlantic, the Georgia Pacific and the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia railroads, with side track already at the property, making it the very best property for manufacturing purposes, or for warehouses Parties who have provision or grain stores in the city could save money by buying one of these lots and erecting a warehouse thereon; where they could load and unload all their supplies in bulk, thereby saving the expensive rents and storage necessary in the center of the city. This property is in the midst of the manufacturing section of the city, and offers superior inducements for investments, as it is admitted by all that it must double in value in a very short time. It is sold for the purpose of investing in cheaper property for a home, as the property has become too valuable to be occupied as a residence by a family of small means. The lots lay just right to be built on easily. Examine the property. Street car in front and the leading railroad lines in rear, Jones avenue on the side. Sale positive, Titles perfect. Terms: Half cash, balance in six months, 8 per cent intesest. Take the 4:45 Marietta horse car. Free ride, and good water on the ground.

HENDRIX & McBURNEY..........AUCTIONEERS

7 Unimproved Lots and 2 Houses & Lots
Foundry and Haynes streets.

AT AUCTION, FRIDAY, JUNE 15th, 1883, at 5:30 p. m. These lots are centrally located, in the midst of the manufacturing district, where renting property pays better than in any other part of the city. Seven of the lots are vacant; two have on them each a two-room plastered house, which have constantly been renting for six dollars each per month. Parties wishing to invest could not do better, as no property so near the factory belt is now offered. This is a good opportunity for mechanics to get a little home and save paying rent. Terms: One-third cash, balance 6 and 12 months, 8 per cent interest. Take Marietta street car and get off at Foundry street. HENDRIX & McBURNEY.

HENDRIX & McBURNEY..........AUCTIONEERS.

2 LARGE VACANT LOTS

ON DAVIS STREET, SAWTELL'S HILL, FRIday, June 15, at 6 p.m., immediately after selling the Foundry and Haynes street lots, we will sell two large elevated lots. They lay high, commanding a fine view of the city and country. They have never been on the market, having been held for fifteen years by the present owner, but will now be sold at your price. This is your opportunity.

Terms—⅓ cash; balance 6 and 12 months, per cent interest.

GONE TO REST.

Death of Mrs. M. A. Haygood, Mother of Rev. A. G. Haygood.

Mrs. Martha Askew Haygood, died in peace at her residence, No. 45 McDonough street, in this city, at half past nine o'clock last night. Mrs. Haygood was born in Burke county, North Carolina, July 14, 1810. She was the daughter of the Rev. Josiah Askew, an itinerant preacher, of Asbury's time—a man who, in his day, was one of the foremost men in the Methodist church. Her father settled in Habersham county, Georgia when Mrs. Haygood was twelve years old. In her girlhood she showed a strong disposition to books, and working her way, become a superior scholar for the times. She was a successful school teacher when, in 1837, she was married to the late Greene B. Haygood, of this city, who died in 1862. Mr. Haygood moved to Atlanta from Clarke county in 1852. Mrs. Haygood was the only one of the original members of Trinity church at the time of her death. Trinity church originated in Mrs. Haygood's school-house, which stood near the residence of Dr. Baird, corner of Mitchell and McDonough streets.

Mrs. Haygood was a woman of remarkable intellectual force and of rare gifts as a teacher. She prepared her two daughters for the Wesleyan Female college, and lacked but little in preparing her sons for Emory college. She was a Christian from her twelfth year; was during her active life full of good works, the friend of the poor and the helper of the helpless. She died calmly, without words, in the full confidence of a Christian's faith, having been ready a long time. She was the mother of six children, two of whom died in infancy. Her surviving children are Dr Atticus G. Haygood, Miss Laura A. Haygood, Mrs. Charles E. Boynton, and William A. Haygood. They were all with her when she died, and may well cherish the memory of such a mother. Her funeral will take place from Trinity church, 10 o'clock Friday morning.

MR. SIMMS'S CONDITION.

Doubt as to Whether or not He Will Recover—A Change Expected Soon.

The physicians attending Mr. George W. Simms, who was thrown from his horse Tuesday night, and dangerously injured, were inclined to the opinion that there was a slight change for the better yesterday. Late in the afternoon he grew suddenly very weak, but afterwards revived and at midnight was resting quietly. Canned beef juice was suggested and given him in the afternoon, as a strengthening nourishment. Although his condition is still considered very dangerous, there is a strong hope for his recovery. Until there is a decided change for the better, he will remain at the residence of Mr. Brooks, where he was carried on the afternoon on which the accident occurred. The company, together with other friends, have given much attention to the suffering man, remaining by his bedside both day and night, and are doing everything in their power for his relief. To remain much longer in his present condition is considered impossible, and it is thought a decided change will take place within the next twenty-four hours.

For Assault.

Jim Jenkins, who made an assault upon young Cook in Brooklyn last Saturday night, whom he knifed badly, was captured last night by Captain Couch and Officers Moon and Thompson and incarcerated upon the charge of assault.

Critically Ill.

Mrs. John Pool is critically ill at her home on Brick street. At a late hour last night her physicians had abandoned all hopes of her recovery.

POSTAL POINTS.

Some Facts Briefly Stated by Mr. Seifert, of the Atlanta Office.

A few days days ago THE CONSTITUTION published the following:

"If Postmaster General Gresham earnestly desires to reform the manner of handling newspapers in the mails, we have a good case he can try his 'prentice hand on. THE CONSTITUTION receives in exchange, or rather is supposed to receive in exchange, the New York Graphic. It is a paper, we beg to state, that contains pictures. Not a copy of it reached THE CONSTITUTION office last week, and last week was by no means an 'off' week in this matter."

Mr. Seifert, superintendent of the delivery of the mail said yesterday:

"Postmaster Conley says that for the last two weeks he has been putting the mail into the section, in which THE CONSTITUTION drawer is, and that he is certain that the Graphic has been put in ther every time."

Of the loss of papers on account of lack of postage he said:

"Eight out of ten people do not put enough postage on THE CONSTITUTION. One cent will carry the paper's weekly edition, but it takes two cents to carry the Sunday paper."

He says that he would be glad if all complaints were made promptly to the office, and efforts will be made to correct all irregularities that are reported.

A Bad Fall.

Bill Moore, the negro boy who fell through the trestle work on the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia railroad, at Rhodes street day before yesterday, is much better, and his physicians considered him out of danger yesterday morning. Moore's injuries consist of an ugly but not bad scratch on the left leg, and a sprained knee. Just before the train reached the Simpson street crossing Moore jumped on, and as it neared the trestle he attempted to jump off. After his feet left the steps and before he relinquished his grip upon the hand guard of the car he saw that the train was on the bridge, and that his leap would be a big one. He tried to hold on until the opposite side of the bridge was reached but could not do so, and dropped when the car was half way over. His fall was fully thirty feet.

City Court.

In the city court yesterday, Judge Clarke presiding, the following cases were tried: E L Murray vs. McBride & Co. Dismissed. Henry B. Lowry vs. Richmond and Danville railroad company. Dismissed. E. Van Winkle & Co., vs. Cook & Stewart. Verdict for plaintiff of $272.46 with interest and costs. George W. Harrison vs. James Tiller. Mistrial. Fincher & Hubbard vs. Mrs. M. R. Wright. Verdict for plaintiff for $117.47 with interest and costs. Maddox vs. Carlton & Bro. Suit for damages. Pending.

A Law Partnership.

Colonel N. J. Hammond has associated with him in the practice of the law Mr. J. G. Zachry, and his son, T. A. Hammond, the firm to be known as Hammond, Zachry & Hammond. Mr. Zachry has won a good reputation at the bar though still a young man. Mr. T. A. Hammond is a young man of promise, who has just been admitted, and gives promise of fine success in the profession.

A Convict Killed.

The governor has been notified of the killing of a negro convict at Lowe's camp. The negro escaped, and during the night a guard who was looking for him came upon him and accosted him. The negro refused to surrender, and was shot and killed while resisting arrest. A coroner's jury made a verdict exonorating the guard from all blame.

In a Destitute Condition.

Dr. Blanford, formerly of Kentucky, is at the point of death at 87½ Broad street. He is in an entirely destitute condition and can get no assistance except from the charity of the public. Mr. J. A. Christian was interesting himself in his behalf yesterday, and succeeded in raising a small amount.

For Lunacy.

In a day or two Mrs. Ashley, who lives in Jamestown, will be tried on a writ of luncy. Martha Harber, a colored lunatic, was sent to Milledgeville yesterday.

Superior Court.

In the superior court yesterday the following cases were disposed of: Mary K. Watson vs. Longley & Robinson. Judgment for plaintiff. Cutliff vs. Boyd and wife. Given to the jury.

Concealed Weapons.

Charles Mathews was given a cell last night by Officers Green and McWilliams upon the charge of carrying concealed weapons.

PERSONAL.

Mr. C. S. Withers leaves Atlanta to-day for Clarksville where he will spend the summer.

Mr. James E. Fox, who has been acting as librarian of the Catholic library, will leave to-day for his home in New Brunswick, N. J.

Dr. Hunter P. Cooper, a young Georgian, a graduate of the university, a son of Colonel Thomas L. Cooper, and a grandson of Hon. Mark A. Cooper, has made a brilliant record at the New York college of physicians and surgeons. He stood among the first ten in a class of 120, won a valuable money prize and a distinguished appointment in the hospital at a handsome salary. Dr. Cooper expects to settle in Atlanta. We are proud of his success—as of all young Grorgians who carry the colors of the commonwealth to distinction.

C. Robinson, 206 S. Broad street, Savannah, Ga., says: "Brown's Iron Bitters cured me of dyspepsia."

All the Atlanta musical stars are singing and playing to-night at the operahouse.

The beautiful and accomplished ladies of the Southern Conservatory will receive their diplomas to-night and Mr. Smith Clayton will deliver the address at this grand affair.

Everyone should attend the grand closing entertainment of the Conservatory at DeGive's. The Schultze orchestra will play a grand overture by Mendelsohn.

This evening at 5 o'clock Colonel Adair will put up for sale that elegant property on the corner of North avenue and Peachtree street, possessing all the advantages of locality for residence purposes that any one would desire in the city. See posters.

Postponed sale Peters' property. The sale of this property, which was interrupted by the rain on last Tuesday, will be resumed at 4 o'clock p. m., Friday, June 15th, at which time the remaining lots will be sold. Come out to the sale and secure a nice, quiet, shady home. See posters.

EDITORS CONSTITUTION: In your issue of the 13th your reporter says that a bill was filed against us by L. W. Thomas, attorney for Moses Bentley, W. A. Pledger and others, to keep us from appropriating money to our own use which we had collected for the National Guards union.

We are authorized by Mr. Thomas, attorney, to state that no such charge is made in the bill brought against us, and that it is not true. The difference between Mr. Bentley, Mr. Pledger and us, arose out of a difference between us as to the proper distribution of the funds collected for the carrying on of the parade on the 5th of this month. We contended that the money collected should be appropriated to the payment of the prizes only, and they contended that it should be appropriated not only to the payment of the prizes, but to all of the other expenses, there not being enough money to pay all.

R. J. HENRY,
JAS. M. GOODLETT.

We hereby state that the above card is true.

M. H. BENTLEY,
